MEMORANDUM OF 1870.

It is hereby directed that in future the Magistrates for the County Palatine of Lancaster shall be appointed by the Chancellor of the Duchy on the recommendation of the Lord Lieutenant of the County Palatine ; but this arrangement is to be subject to the exercise by the Chancellor of the Duchy and County Palatine of Lancaster of the like powers, privileges, and restrictions in the appointment of Magistrates for the said County Palatine as are exercised by the Lord Chancellor in the appointment of Magistrates for other counties.

Her Majesty has signified Her approval of this arrangement.

Chancellor of Duchy and County Palatine of Lancaster.

NOTE to the above MEMORANDUM.

" Letters bearing date respectively the 12th and 26th instant, from the Right Honourable Colonel Wilson Patten, are read, intimating that the above arrangement is quite in accordance with his views, and that he should have taken the same step himself while Chancellor of the Duchy but for circumstances which he could not control ; that the late Lord Derby, when Prime Minister, gave his full assent to the measure, and that he (Colonel Patten) has no doubt that every future Government will be able, and bound, to resist political pressure for the appointment of Magistrates by any recurrence to the old system.

LETTER of the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster to the Lord Lieutenant.

Duchy of Lancaster Office, London, W.C.,
28 April 1870.

My Lord,

WITH reference to the conversation I had the honour of holding with your Lordship on Monday the 11th instant, I beg to state that I have this day passed a Minute, a copy of which is herein inclosed.

By this document your Lordship will see that in future all appointments to the Lancashire magistracy will be made on the recommendation of the Lord Lieutenant of the county as is done in other parts of the Kingdom. And it is not intended that the Lord Lieutenant's freedom of selection should be in any way controlled or interfered with by the Chancellor of the Duchy, except under such special circumstances as would authorise the intervention of the Lord Chancellor of England with the discretion of the Lord Lieutenants of other counties.

I have further to inform your Lordship that it is intended by Her Majesty's Government that this arrangement should be a permanent one, so far as it is in their power to render it so.

I have directed the Clerk of the Peace to supply your Lordship with any information connected with the present state of the magistracy which you may require. In appointing magistrates the mode of procedure will be for your Lordship to forward your recommendations to the Chancellor of the Duchy, who will thereupon issue his fiat for the insertion in the Commission of the Peace of the names of the gentlemen nominated.

I propose that the new arrangement should come into operation on the 1st May next.

(No. 3.)

LETTER from the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster to the Lord Lieutenant.

Duchy of Lancaster Office, London,
18 January 1893.

My Lord,

DURING the last three months numerous representations have been made, and memorials presented to me from various parts of the county of Lancaster, regarding the present composition of the county bench. The great preponderance among the magistrates of gentlemen belonging to one political party, that which supported the late Government, is complained of; strong dissatisfaction is expressed with this preponderance, and I am pressed, as Chancellor of the Duchy, to resume the practice, disused since 1870, of making appointments to the county bench on my own initiative, without awaiting the recommendation of the Lord Lieutenant. I have replied to these complaints and appeals that I have no wish to disturb the existing arrangement (although it rests only upon a voluntary concession made by one of my predecessors), and should prefer not to throw back upon the Duchy Office the difficult and invidious task of selecting county magistrates.

At the same time I cannot refuse the requests repeatedly made from Lancashire, that I should convey to your Lordship the belief, which, as prolonged inquiry has satisfied me, now exists in the county, that it would greatly conduce to general satisfaction and good feeling, and would strengthen the respect felt for the bench, if the inequality I have referred to were diminished by the appointment of a considerable number of gentlemen belonging to the Party now in so marked a minority.

We must all unite in desiring that politics should have as little as possible to do with appointments to the bench, but when a glaring disparity exists, and has long existed, it is natural that those excluded should feel aggrieved and suspicious; nor are they consoled by being reminded that the fact is probably due, in many or most instances, to the tendency of the existing magistrates in each locality to recommend for appointment their own personal and political friends.

From statistics supplied to me it appears that in Lancashire there are at present on the county bench 142 Liberals against 522 members of the opposite Party, and that of these only 35 Liberals, against 177 of the opposite Party, have been appointed since 1886. In some Petty Sessional Divisions, in Hawkshead, Leyland, Garstang, Wigan, Ormskirk, and St. Helen's, there are no Liberals on the bench, while in the Kirkham Division there are but 6 Liberals to 16 of the Opposition; in Bury, 6 to 17; in Manchester, 5 to 21; in Burnley, 2 to 17; in Bacup, Rawtenstall, and Haslingden, 2 to 21; in Hornby, 1 to 11; and in Lancaster, 1 to 27.

I am assured that these figures have been carefully compiled, omitting persons whose politics are doubtful or unknown. But even if they are only approximately accurate, they disclose a state of things prejudicial to the confidence of the people in the administration of justice. Such confidence is necessarily impaired when a large portion, in many cases (as appears from the representation in Parliament) more than half the population is of one political opinion, while the magistrates are almost exclusively of another. Your Lordship will, I trust, agree with me in thinking that this is a real evil, which it is desirable to remedy.

The Memorialists have presented a large number of names of gentlemen worthy in their opinion, in point of ability and of character, and of the respect felt for them in their neighbourhood, of a seat on the bench, and have asked me to transmit these names to your Lordship. It seems unnecessary at this moment to request your Lordship to examine all of these Memorials and the names they contain. I have therefore thought it best to select from the various Petty Sessional Divisions, some in which the need for a rectification of the existing inequality seems specially urgent, and from among the persons submitted, a certain number who seem to possess peculiar claims, adding one of whose fitness I entertain no doubt. (The original Memorials containing these names, not all of whom belong to the Liberal Party, are of course at your Lordship's disposal, if you desire to peruse them. A copy of one Memorial, however, which bears upon the general question, and is influentially signed, is enclosed).

I therefore append the names of thirty-nine gentlemen distributed under ten Petty Sessional Divisions, and hope that your Lordship may see fit, if satisfied as to their competence, to recommend them to me for appointment according to the custom followed of late years.

I have, &c.

The Right Honourable the Earl of Sefton, K.G.,
Lord Lieutenant of the County Palatine of Lancaster.

MEMORIAL referred to in No. 3.

To the Right Honourable James Bryce, M.P., Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster.

Sir,

WE, the undersigned, beg most respectfully to call your attention to the political and social disability under which the Liberals of the County of Lancaster suffer in respect of the appointment of county magistrates.

Of late years the action of the Lord Lieutenant of the county, in whose hands the appointment of county magistrates is at present vested, has created great discontent owing to his having passed over the names of many Liberals that have been sent up to him, whose recommendation has been supported by influential men, while he has made numerous appointments from the ranks of their political opponents.

Your memorialists respectfully submit that this is an abuse of a great trust, which ought to be exercised with strict impartiality in the interests of the community at large, and independently of such political considerations as have almost uniformly influenced all appointments during the past few years.

They pray, therefore, that steps may be taken to restore to the Minister, who for the time being fills the office you now hold, those powers and functions in regard to the appointment of magistrates which were transferred from the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster to the Lord Lieutenant of the county.

We are, &c.

(No. 5.)

The Lord Lieutenant to the Chancellor of the Duchy.

Sir, 6 February 1893.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 18th ult., relative to the appointment of the Lancashire magistrates. In 1871 (sic) the nomination of the Lancashire County Justices was given to me as Lord Lieutenant. A memorandum to that effect approved by the leading Members of all parties in both Houses of Parliament, including, I believe, Mr. Gladstone, was left in the Duchy Office by Lord Dufferin, the then Chancellor.

Before 1871 the appointments had been made for many years almost entirely on political grounds, and as rewards for party services, and so the change became absolutely necessary.

I have always looked upon the nomination of the justices as a trust conferred upon me by all political parties, and I have never abused that trust during the last 22 years by nominating a single magistrate on political grounds.

When additional justices have been required I have always endeavoured to find the most suitable candidate in the different districts without inquiring to what political party they belonged.

At the present time there is no demand for any substantial addition to the magisterial bench; and I understand that your request that I should at once nominate 40 magistrates is not based upon any such demand, but solely and alone because you desire that 40 gentlemen who are supporters of Mr. Gladstone should be nominated by me.

If I comply with your request I should be adding unnecessary numbers to the magisterial bench in many districts, and should, for the first time, be nominating magistrates on account of political opinions.

You have of course a legal right to tear up the memorandum of 1870, and to appoint all or any of the gentlemen named without consulting me.

If you take this step I must decline to have anything further to do with the selection and nomination of the Lancashire justices, and the county bench will return to the chaos existing prior to 1871.

For every magistrate you appoint, your successor will probably be pressed to appoint two.

The selection of gentlemen for the county bench is no easy task; it is not patronage to be envied.

Personally I should be very glad to be relieved from this duty, but, believing as I most firmly do, that the present arrangement is the best for my own county, I am bound to ask that the fullest inquiry may be made before you comply with the prayer of the Memorialists: and I do so because I venture to point out to you that it is most desirable that the present justices, many of whom are sacrificing valuable time for the public benefit, should not feel that the system under which they have been appointed and are acting has been unnecessarily attacked.

As I have already stated, the duty of nominating the Lancashire county justices has been performed by me, since it was placed in my hands in 1871, absolutely without reference to party considerations, which I believe has not been the rule in all other counties. I would suggest that you should consult the Lord Chancellor as to the course he proposes to take in their case.

I cannot help thinking that the statistics supplied to you are misleading, if not incorrect. When most of the present justices were appointed those who are now classified as Liberal Unionists were Liberals, and acted with the Liberal party of the day.

It may also be found that there are justices who when appointed were Liberals but have become Conservatives during the last six years.

If you take the population under the jurisdiction of the county justices that is outside the towns which have borough benches of their own, I do not believe the political inequality on the county bench will be found to be so very great.

Many of the Memorialists, and many of those who are recommended for appointment as county justices, are townsmen, and can have no interest in the appointment of the county justices except on political grounds, and I gladly endorse your statement that politics should have as little as possible to do with the appointments to the bench.

I desire to add that if any representation be made to me that additional justices are required in any district, I will gladly consider the competency and claims of the gentlemen whose names you have submitted to me, without the slightest reference to their political opinions.

I am, &c.
(signed) Sefton.

The Right Honourable James Bryce, M.P.,

(No. 6.)

The Chancellor of the Duchy to the Lord Lieutenant.

My Lord,

7 March 1893.

YOUR letter of the 6th February, which I have already acknowledged, has been the subject of my serious consideration. I have also had the advantage of listening to two deputations advocating opposite views on the subject, and have caused the figures given in my former letter (which refer to the whole number of Magistrates now in the Commission) to be carefully re-examined. They appear to be substantially correct; though there may be occasional errors of detail, and in some few cases it is difficult to say to which party certain magistrates are to be reckoned.

While receiving with pleasure your Lordship's assurance that you have not desired to allow party considerations to influence your choice of nominees for the County Bench, I must nevertheless observe that the disparity mentioned in my former letter cannot, in such a county as Lancashire, where in both parties there are plenty of fit men possessed of the requisite qualification, be regarded as accidental. It must therefore apparently be ascribed to the action of the local benches, the Tory majorities in which seem (with one or two exceptions) to have been in the habit of recommending to your Lordship their own political friends and associates, prolonging and increasing by this method of co-optation the disparity referred to. Thus the appointments, whatever the cause, have in point of fact had a strong political colour; and I regret to notice that your Lordship does not appear to recognise the injury to the Bench which that colour cannot but involve.

In reply to your Lordship's suggestion that the present inequality may be due to the fact that gentlemen claimed as Liberals before 1886 have subsequently joined the Tory party, or entered, under the name of Liberal Unionists, into an alliance with it, I may observe that the inequality has been more glaring in the appointments made since 1886 than it was previously, for the figures show that the percentage of Liberals appointed since that year is only about 20 per cent. against 80 per cent. belonging to the opposite party or parties, whereas the percentage in the previous fifteen years seems to have been about 45 to 55. I cannot agree with the view that there is no demand for additions to the bench, being satisfied that in many of the Petty Sessional Divisions such demand now exists. My request was that steps should be taken to diminish the existing disparity by selecting for some time to come competent persons, most at least of whom should belong to the party now in a minority; and as the 39 names suggested (upon which your Lordship's letter offers no remarks) would have been distributed over 10 divisions, their appointment would not have anywhere unduly increased the total number of magistrates. The object contemplated is not, as your letter seems to imply, that political considerations should now be introduced for the benefit of one Party, an object which I should strongly deprecate, but that the injustice which now exists and which has evidently been due to party influences, should be remedied in the interests of the due administration of justice and the confidence of people therein.

So far from desiring to let matters relapse into the condition of 23 years ago, my wish has been and is to find a method by which, something having been done to abate the present evils, appointments to the Bench shall be made in future with reference to personal fitness and to the due representation of the various classes in the community.

I have conferred with the Lord Chancellor and find his view to be (a view in which I concur) that the case of Lancashire differs from that of the other counties because the Lancashire practice is comparatively recent, and due solely to the action of one of my predecessors, an action natural and reasonable as the facts then stood, but which subsequent experience does not approve.

Having made that full inquiry which your Lordship rightly desires, I have been driven to the conclusion, which is shared by my colleagues, that the system established by the Minute of 1870 has failed to secure that fair representation of both political parties on the bench which was then expected from it.

Had your Lordship been willing to do something to appease the existing discontent in the way indicated in my letter, the present system might have been suffered to continue some time longer, though public opinion, stimulated by the recent creation of local representative government in the counties, would hardly have acquiesced in its maintenance for an indefinite period. But as you have absolutely declined to take the course suggested, I find myself obliged, reluctant as I am to undertake a delicate and invidious function, to revoke, with the approval of Her Majesty (as mentioned in the enclosed memorandum) and by the decision of the Government, the Minute of April 28th, 1870, and to intimate to your Lordship, that although I shall receive with pleasure in the future, as in the past, any recommendations which you may send me, and venture to hope (notwithstanding an expression in your letter) that you will continue to send them, I shall, nevertheless, hold myself free to receive recommendations from other quarters also, and to give effect to them, if satisfied of the need for magistrates in the locality, and of the fitness of the persons suggested.

I have, &c.

MEMORANDUM of 1893, referred to in No. 6.

In view of the dissatisfaction which has been found to exist in Lancashire with the working of the arrangement embodied in the Memorandum of the 28th day of April 1870, for the selection and recommendation by the Lord Lieutenant of the County Palatine of Lancaster of magistrates for that county, and having regard to the changes which have taken place in the system of County Government since that date, the Chancellor of the Duchy withdraws that Memorandum, and reverts to the practice which prevailed prior to the above date, under which the Chancellor of the Duchy received recommendations from various quarters and himself selected persons to be appointed magistrates for the County Palatine.

Her Majesty has signified Her approval of this arrangement.

* Fiat for first Commission of the Peace for the Borough.

† During the period 1886-87 (inclusive), the appointments made by the Lord Chancellor and by the Duchy Chancellor were duplicate appointments of the same persons; so that, in that period, 14 (not 28) Justices were appointed.

Since the passing of the Local Government Act, 1888, no appointments have been made by the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, the Borough being now deemed to be wholly in Cheshire.

MEMORANDUM.

Neither the Commission of Peace itself, nor the Records of the Justice of Peace Court contain the Date of Qualification, and the Clerk of the Peace has, therefore, no means of giving that information. Many of the Justices are not personally known to the Clerk of the Peace, and, therefore, he is unable to give their professional description, but the profession and description so far as known are given.

List A comprises all cases, exclusive of Mint cases, in which the conduct of the prosecution was undertaken by the Director, and carried out in his Department, or through his agents.

List B comprises all applications and communications made to the Director with a view to his taking action, other than Mint cases, and those comprised in List A.

These Lists comprise all criminal and quasi criminal cases, excepting as above, which have been referred to, conducted in, or in any way dealt with by the Treasury Solicitor's Department, on references from the Lords of the Treasury, Home Secretary, or other Department, to the Treasury Solicitor; the action taken by the Treasury Solicitor in criminal cases being practically the same as that taken by him as Director, and in accordance with the Regulations prescribed for the Director.

The column in List A, headed "Costs," gives the amount paid in each case out of the Vote for "Law Charges," which is accounted for by the Treasury Solicitor.

In the column in List B, headed "Persons Charged," the initials only, not the names of the persons in respect of whom the application is made, are given, many of the applications or charges being without justification, or unsupported by any reliable evidence. For the same reason the name and address of the Applicant or Correspondent is not given in full, excepting where such Applicant or Correspondent is a Public Officer, or Solicitor, or Clerk to Justices, Coroner, or other Official in a responsible position.

The duties of the Director's Department are not confined to the conduct of the prosecution by himself and his Department in London, or through his agents in the country, and are not concluded by the trial and verdict as recorded in column 7 of List A.

The figures given in column 8, showing the total costs charged to the Vote, represent an amount of work including correspondence in the Director's Department, which is probably not realised.

The duties of the Department with respect to a criminal prosecution are not concluded with the trial, verdict, and sentence. The examination of the agents' bills with the vouchers, when the case is in the country, and the correspondence arising thereon, goes on often for months, before the figures in column 8 are finally ascertained and the papers can be put away as done with. Moreover, at the conclusion, it may be said of almost every prosecution, whether conducted in the Department, or by country agents, letters are addressed to the Director by witnesses dissatisfied with the payments received by them as Court allowances, giving reasons for such dissatisfaction, usually claiming for loss of time, wages, salary, trade, or professional profits, caused by attendances before and at the trial.

The Home Office scale does not recognise any such allowances, and it is only in rare instances, and under peculiar circumstances, as where a witness to facts has been asked to give evidence as an expert, to answer questions put to him in the witness-box on scientific or legal questions, the custom of trade, or such like, that the Director can be justified in supplementing the Court allowance. All these letters have to be answered, the greater number of them by a refusal and expression of regret; a simple refusal, without some answer to the specific grounds of complaint, or explanation of the reasons for refusal, would not unreasonably be considered as discourteous as well as unsatisfactory. This is not the place to discuss the principle on which the scale of allowances is fixed, or the adequacy of the allowances to the different classes of witnesses, for which scale the Director is not responsible, though he himself personally or "the Treasury" has to bear the blame, and he is in almost every instance held responsible for what the witness considers the injustice of which he complains.

Few of the cases in List B. are disposed of by a single answer. The correspondence, before an application is finally disposed of is often considerable.

The words in List B, column 5, under "Result of Application," give the final decision come to by the Director. In the greater number of cases reasons are stated, and advice given to the Applicant, as to the course he should pursue, if the conduct of the prosecution is left in his hands, or to follow the ordinary course, in the hands of the police. It is not because the Director "declines to prosecute" or "leaves the case to take its ordinary course," that prosecutions are not instituted, and carried through in many of the cases in List B.

It is believed that the provisions of the two Codes of Regulations sanctioned by Parliament, prescribing the duties of the Director, and of Chief Officers of Police, and of other officials, are every year becoming more generally known and understood; the complaints and criticisms upon the action of the Director both with respect to his conduct of prosecutions, as well as when he refuses to prosecute, have been during the past year less frequent, and more moderate.

The Director desires it to be remembered that he has no opportunity of answering these complaints in the public press, or elsewhere, at the time they are made, or of justifying himself and his Department in public, excepting when Parliament is sitting, and if Questions are asked in Parliament [Note], founded on such complaints, or where the complaints are made to, or for some reason have to be dealt with by his official superiors, the Lords of the Treasury, the Home Secretary or the Attorney General.

The following case was made the text of unfavourable criticisms on the Director and his Department.

Appendix D.

A case of Reg. v. Neal and Kemp, which was not conducted by the Director or by his agent, was tried at the Central Criminal Court on October 29th, and reported in the "Times" Newspaper of October 30th, the circumstances (as they were given in the report) being that a traveller in the employment of the prosecutor, a manufacturing jeweller, had left his vehicle containing samples of watches to the value of 4,200*l.* in charge of the driver, who left it unattended in the street. On the driver's return the vehicle had disappeared. This happened in July, and in the following October the prisoners were found pledging some of the stolen jewellery. The jury convicted both the prisoners, and Neal was sentenced to 7, and Kemp (who had been previously convicted) to 10 years' penal servitude.

The Judge refused an application from prosecuting counsel that Kemp should be ordered to pay the costs of the prosecution, saying that there had been neglect on the part of the prosecution in obtaining legal assistance.

Counsel then stated that he had been instructed that application had been made to the Public Prosecutor, but he had refused legal assistance.

The Judge observed that a case of this kind was exactly the case which the Public Prosecutor should take up.

An inspector of police said the Public Prosecutor based his refusal only on the ground that the prosecutors were well to do and quite able to pay their own costs.

The Judge observed in that he thought the Public Prosecutor was right.

This Report was made the text of a letter in the "Times" Newspaper signed "Mercator," under the heading "The Duties of the Public Prosecutor," in which "Mercator" protested against this "version of the Public Prosecutor's duty," and gave an example "of how it works," having been told by his solicitor in answer to a suggestion that he should apply to the Treasury for assistance in prosecuting a gang of swindlers, that the Public Prosecutor would never help a firm like his, but would intervene only when the poverty of the applicant prevented his getting legal assistance.

This letter was again taken as a text for articles in other newspapers, suggesting, inter alia, "that society would save money in the long run, if the "Public Prosecutor were more ready to take action even when the costs of "prosecutions could be borne by the prosecutor."

"That the letter of Mercator could not be said to throw more light, or "rather more darkness, upon the interestingly mysterious office of the Public "Prosecutor."

Comparing the Scotch system of prosecution to that administered by the Public Prosecutor, and stating that there could be no doubt but that Mercator's experience was of every-day occurrence.

The Director never having heard of the case of Neal and Kemp till he read the report of the trial in the newspapers, made the fullest inquiry, and ascertained, and the fact was admitted, that no application to undertake the prosecution prosecution had been made to the Director or to his Department, and therefore the Director had never declined, for the reason given or any other reason, to undertake the prosecution, but the foundation of the story was an opinion expressed by somebody to somebody else, that the Director, if he had been asked, would have declined, and would have done so for the reason attributed to him.

The circumstances of this case, and the statements made in Court, and reported in the newspapers, afford an illustration of the foundations on which some of the criticisms on the Director, and on the system he has to administer, are occasionally founded.

The sensational incidents of several of the criminal prosecutions conducted in the Director's department during the year 1891, and particularly noticed in his last Return to Parliament, probably directed public attention to the Return itself and the statistics of the other cases dealt with during the year, and incidentally to the Statutes and Regulations which define and limit the Director's duties.

The Director is glad to be able to acknowledge that since the publication of that Return, the complaints and criticisms in the public press, so far as they have come under his notice, have been less frequent and more moderate. The difficulties under which the duties of his department are discharged, and the limited nature of the Director's powers have been recognised, and credit has been allowed to the Director and to his Department for earnest and not wholly unsuccessful efforts in the discharge of their duties to the public.^(a)

The Director, acting to the best of his judgment in accordance and within the limits of his statutable powers, has endeavoured and will continue to endeavour to profit by these criticisms.

Only three instances during the past year have come to the Director's knowledge in which Judges of the High Court have, either incidentally or directly, expressed dissatisfaction with the Director in respect of the institution or conduct by him of criminal prosecutions.

The Director in previous Returns has given particulars of and dealt with several cases of like character, and his reports thereon with the original documents have all been preserved and registered either in the Treasury or the Home Office, and are available for reference.

With respect to the three instances in 1892, in one of the three (a prosecution for causing the death of a child by neglect), the criticism was withdrawn. Case No. 70, List A.

In the second (a prosecution for perjury alleged to have been committed by a witness in a County Court), the circumstances were brought to the notice of the Home Secretary by a letter from a Poor Law guardian, and formed the subject of a correspondence between the Home Secretary, the County Court Judge, and the Solicitor acting for the Defendant in the County Court, and of a question asked of the Home Secretary in Parliament. Case No. 110,

Appendix E.

The Home Secretary referred all the papers to the Director, who instituted inquiries, undertook the conduct of the prosecution, and obtained the committal of the witness on a charge of perjury to the Assizes.

The Judge of Assize, in charging the Grand Jury, stated that on the depositions there appeared to be a case against the Defendant, but at the Trial, after some of the witnesses for the prosecution had been examined and cross-examined, directed the jury to find a verdict of not guilty, and added that, if he had the power, he would grant costs to the Defendant, and that the prosecution was one which, in his opinion, should not have been brought. Appendix E.

The Defendant's Solicitor forwarded a newspaper report of the Trial and of the learned Judge's observations to the Lords of the Treasury, and relying on these these observations, and the fact that "the prosecution had been conducted by their Lordships' Solicitor," and stating that his client had been advised to retain eminent counsel for his defence, and had been compelled to have numerous witnesses in attendance at the Assizes, at a cost of 119 £, asked that these costs should be repaid. The solicitor also referred their Lordships, "if they required" further information, to the learned Judge, who (so the solicitor stated), at the "Trial, had promised to answer any references which might be made to him "respecting the case."

The Lords of the Treasury referred the application to the Director for a Report, who was then given the opportunity of bringing all the circumstances to their notice, and their Lordships informed the applicant that they had communicated with the Director, and that they declined to authorise any payment towards the costs of the Defendant.

The application was not renewed.

The Director also reported the circumstances, with a copy of the application of the Defendant's solicitor to the Lords of the Treasury to the Home Secretary, by whose directions the alleged perjury had, as above stated, been brought to the Director's notice, and the Home Secretary officially informed the Director that in his opinion the prosecution was a proper one (a).

Extracts from "Northampton Daily Chronicle," and from "Northampton Daily Register."

In the third case, a prosecution of two men for conspiring to defraud, and for obtaining money by false pretences, undertaken by the Director, and carried on by his agent under his instructions, the Lord Chief Justice as Judge of Assize suggested to the grand jury to ignore the Bills, and, after they had nevertheless returned true Bills, in the course of the trial on being informed by Counsel for the prosecution that the case was conducted by an agent for the Director of Public Prosecutions in the usual form, His Lordship is reported to have said, "It (the case) confirms every experience I have yet had of Treasury Prosecutions," and to have suggested to the petty jury to stop the case. The petty jury, however, declined to do so, and His Lordship in the course of his summing-up is reported to have told the jury "that the Treasury ought really to have known better than put forward evidence which, in his opinion, was not receivable, but brought simply and solely for the purpose of prejudicing the minds of the jury."

The jury, however, found the Defendants guilty, on one of the counts of the indictment, and sentences of three months' hard labour were passed on both of them.

IMPOUNDED DOCUMENTS.

Appendix G.

RULE 33A. OF ORDER XLII. OF THE SUPREME COURT, 1ST JULY 1891, AS AMENDED BY PROVISIO OF 17TH JUNE 1892, RELATING TO THE CUSTODY AND INSPECTION OF IMPOUNDED DOCUMENTS.

At pages 6, 7, 8, and 26, of the Return for last year, an explanation is given of the circumstances under which a prosecution for perjury had been instituted by the Director against one W. H. Hurlbert, on evidence given by him on the Trial of the Action of Evelyn v. Hurlbert, in the Queen's Bench Division, in which the Defendant was sued for damages for an alleged Breach of Promise of Marriage, and in which the jury found a verdict for the Defendant, and the Court ordered the documents given in evidence at the Trial to be impounded.

A question was asked in the House of Commons with reference to the statements in that Return, which resulted in a Motion by the Home Secretary for a copy of the Director's correspondence with the Associate of the Queen's Bench Division

Division

(a) The circumstances of this case (Reg. v. Langburn) are of considerable interest, on the question of the power and practice of the County Courts to order the committal of the Judgment Debtors to prison for non-payment of Judgment Debts. The Director in his Reports to the Treasury and the Home Office suggested that the attention of the Lord Chancellor might properly be called to the Correspondence and Evidence given in the County Court proceedings, and at the Trial at the Assizes of Reg. v. Langburn.

Since the above was written the Lord Chancellor has moved for a Select Committee to investigate and report on the subject of committals by County Court Judges under the Debtors Act.

Division respecting the impounded documents, which correspondence was accordingly printed as a Return to the House of Commons, and laid on the table of the House.

Parliamentary Paper, No. 184,

Appendix G.

Notice to call the attention of the House of Lords, on 13th May 1892, to this correspondence, and a Motion for a Copy of Rule 33A. of the Supreme Court was subsequently (May 27th) given and made by Lord Coleridge in the House of Lords, and on the 20th of June attention was called by His Lordship to the correspondence, on which a discussion arose, which was reported in the "Times," and other London newspapers of Monday, June 20th 1892.

It will be seen that Lord Coleridge, referring to the printed Correspondence, is reported to have said :

"Every permission was given for the inspection and copying of documents on August 24th, but nothing was done until November the 27th. Then came the information from New York that Hurlbert had disappeared, and nothing more was done."

Appendix G.

* * * * *

"Under the new rule documents would be handed over to the Attorney or Solicitor General, if they were asked for, and the use that might be made of them was a thing with which, of course, the Judges had nothing to do."

The fact being, as appears on the correspondence, that permission was not given to the Director till the 4th December, and then in the following terms by the Associate :—

Pages 8 and 9 of printed correspondence.

"I am now authorised to say that you are quite at liberty to have any inspection made, and a list taken of the documents impounded. . . . but the Lord Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Cave think that the time for considering the application for copies has not yet arrived."

The actual dates and facts as they appear on the correspondence are shortly and clearly summarised in an article which appeared in the "Echo" Newspaper of 19th May 1892. The only observation which the Director thinks it necessary to add, being that so far from "nothing having been done between the 24th August and the 27th November;" inquiries were being actively carried on, under the Director's instructions, by detective officers, both in England and on the Continent, on information obtained by the Director from the Plaintiff's Solicitor, and other sources than the impounded documents, but without the assistance which would have been afforded by the Plaintiff's diary, which was among the impounded documents, and of which no copy was in existence, and which diary the Director had never seen, and of which he had never been permitted to take a copy.

Appendix G.

Lord Coleridge having withdrawn his Motion for a copy of the rule; observations were made by Lord Herschell and the Lord Chancellor (Lord Halsbury) in approval of the new rule as amended, and as described by Lord Coleridge.

Appendix G.

The new Rule itself, which "came into operation on the 1st July 1891," is printed in Snow's Annual Practice for 1893, but the proviso or Amendment to it is not there in print. A copy of the proviso, dated June 1892," was furnished to the Director by the Lord Chancellor's Secretary, and the two, i.e., the "new Rule" and the "proviso," are now printed in the Appendix to this Return.

Appendix G

It will be observed that the proviso to the Rule does not deal with the "inspection," but only with the "custody" of the impounded documents.

Since the amended Rule has come into operation the following instance has occurred of its application :—

No. 220. List A,
and Appendix G.

In May 1891 certain consolidated actions, re Park's Estate, Cole v. Park, Park v. Cole, came on to be heard before Mr. Justice Romer in the Chancery Division, involving a claim set up against the Executors of Park on a Deed of Gift alleged to have been executed by the deceased in favour of Miss M. Smith for 20,000 £, to take effect, in her favour, if the son of the deceased should refuse to carry out a promise alleged to have been made by him to marry Miss Smith. The witnesses in support of the validity of the Deed were Miss Smith herself, and certain other persons named Micklethwait, Paul, and Alliston. Mr. Justice Romer, in delivering Judgment, held this claim to be wholly fraudulent and supported by forged and fictitious documents, all of which he ordered to be impounded.

Appendix G.

Charges were preferred, at the instance of the Director, of forgery, perjury, and conspiracy, against Margaret Smith, Mickelthwaite, Paul, and Alliston, at Bow-street Police Court, on which they were ultimately committed for trial, and subsequently tried and convicted at the September Sessions of the Central Criminal Court, 1892.

In investigating a case of this character, and in order to enable the Director to instruct Counsel and to determine on the specific charges to be preferred, and the persons to be charged, and on the evidence necessary to support such charges, it is necessary not only that the Director should have unfettered access to all the impounded documents to assist him in his inquiries, but that the originals of the alleged forgeries, and the other written documents when the question of handwriting is material, should be seen by counsel, and afterwards on swearing the Informations on which process against the persons to be charged, is to be applied for, the original documents must be shown to the Informants.

In this particular case photographs had been taken of all the documents in the Chancery proceedings, as well as a list and description, for the purposes of reference and identification, and these photographs and this list were obtained by the Director from the Solicitors engaged in the Chancery proceedings, and, therefore, it was not necessary for the Director to inspect the originals or to make copies of the letters for the purpose of advising with Counsel, and therefore not necessary, at that stage of the inquiry, for the Attorney General to make any application to the Court as required by the proviso, to have them delivered into his custody; but as soon as it became necessary for the Director to commence proceedings by laying Informations at Bow-street, on which to obtain Warrants against the persons to be charged, it became necessary to obtain the custody of the original documents for the Informants to swear to and identify, and to produce them in Court as evidence for the prosecution, in support of the charges preferred against the prisoners before the magistrate.

Appendix G.

The first step, therefore, under the Rule and Proviso which the Director took in this case, was to apply to the Registrar of the Chancery Division for the necessary permission to inspect the impounded documents [and, as in this case after the expression of the Judge's opinion, which was not given in the Hurlbert case, there could be no question as to the persons to be prosecuted] he was enabled to state the purpose for which he desired an inspection [and, being in possession of the photographs] to describe some of the particular documents he wished to inspect.

Appendix G.

In answer to this application, no difficulty was made, and no conditions imposed by the Registrar, or the Court, but the Director was permitted himself to prepare the form of Order he wanted, which he accordingly did, and it was returned to him signed by the Lord Chancellor and Mr. Justice Chitty, in the absence through illness of Mr. Justice Romer, the Judge who had ordered the impounding.

Having thus got an inspection by an officer of his Department, and an expert in handwriting, the next step was to obtain possession of the documents themselves for the initiation of the criminal proceedings.

Appendix G.

The Director accordingly applied to the Attorney General, who made the request required by the proviso, and sent the documents in the custody of his Official Clerk to Bow-street Police Court.

The Clerk remained at Bow-street in charge of the documents until they were duly given in evidence, and annexed to the depositions by direction of the Committing Magistrate.

After the trial and conviction of the prisoners at the Central Criminal Court, the documents were returned to the Attorney General's Clerk.

No. 220. List A.

In Margaret Smith's case, if it had not been for the existence of the photographs of the original documents, it would have been necessary either to have obtained permission to have photographs taken of them while in the custody of the Officer of the Court, or of the Attorney General, or for the Attorney General's Clerk to have attended at Counsel's Chambers with the originals for Counsel's inspection inspection, and for the Clerk to have attended during the whole of the proceedings at Bow-street as representing the Attorney General.

The proviso to the rule, it will be observed, provides for the custody of the impounded documents by the Law Officers of the Crown, or either of them, and unless it be strictly construed, so as to exclude the transfer of that custody by the Law Officers to the Director of Public Prosecutions, it is not easy to see the object of the proviso; for, if the impounded documents once get into the custody of the Director, he will have the same opportunity of making an improper use of them, as he had before the making of the rule and of the Proviso, when on his own application he could obtain not only an inspection, but their custody from the Court as a matter of course.

It would seem to be the object of the amended Rule to insure that in any case in which documents are impounded by a Judge of the High Court, that either the Attorney or Solicitor General should exercise a discretion as to whether a prosecution is to be instituted, and as to the party to be prosecuted, and give his directions to the Director of Public Prosecutions accordingly.

It might have been open to doubt whether the original Rule 33A. was intended by its framers to apply to the Director of Public Prosecutions, or only to parties to the litigation and their private Solicitors who would also be required to move for an order in open Court to obtain the custody. But all doubt on this point was removed by the Associates' answer of the 23rd June to the Director's application for the impounded documents in Evelyn v. Hurlbert, and by the rest of the correspondence and subsequently confirmed by the wording of the proviso requiring a request in writing by one of the Law Officers of the Crown omitting any reference to the Director of Public Prosecutions, thus clearly putting the Director, so far as the Court is concerned, for the future in the position of any private litigant or solicitor, who may, for any reason, want an inspection or custody of impounded documents.

Parliamentary
Paper, No. 184,

Evelyn v. Hurlbert
Correspondence.

The Law Officers will therefore, in future, in a case where the Court expresses no opinion, or gives no direction as to the person or persons to be prosecuted, when such Law Officer has on his written application obtained the custody of the documents, either have to decide without further inquiry, and give his directions to the Director as to the person or persons to be prosecuted, and as to the charges whether of Perjury, Forgery, or whatever the offence which has led the Court to order the impounding of the documents may be, or if he desires further inquiries to be made, to instruct a solicitor and transfer the custody to such solicitor to make the necessary inquiries, or entrust the custody to the Director for the purpose of making these inquiries and to report the result thereof to him.

If the Law Officer takes the latter course he practically ignores both the Rule and the Proviso, and treats both as not applicable to the Director, and the Director will practically be in the same position as he was before the making of the Rule in June 1891, and the addition of the Proviso in June 1892.

The initiative on these occasions, which, under the Regulations, has hitherto been taken by the Director, must therefore, for the future, be taken by one of the Law Officers.

The office of Director of Public Prosecutions is created by Statute, and his duties defined and prescribed by Regulations approved by Parliament. Those Regulations, it is submitted, contemplate that not only all necessary inquiries for the obtaining of evidence should be instituted by the Director, and not by a Law Officer, but that the Director should exercise a discretion as to the nature of the proceedings necessary to "secure the due prosecution of an offender." His action is in all matters subject to the direction of the Attorney General, and he has therefore, as he understands, and has hitherto acted, a discretion given him to apply to the Attorney General for directions in any case when he feels a difficulty, or is unwilling to take upon himself the responsibility of instituting a particular prosecution.

It is not for the Director to say how far the new Rule with the Proviso conflicts with the duties imposed on him by the Regulations which were approved by Parliament, and came into force in June 1886, while the new Rule dates only from June 1891.

COSTS IN CRIMINAL PROSECUTIONS AS CHARGED TO THE VOTE FOR LAW CHARGES, CLASS III., VOTE 1, SUB-HEAD B.

The gross expenditure for 1891-92 was - - -	20,745	12	11
The credits, including costs when recovered, and the allowances received from county treasurers, were - - - - -	4,865	3	8
Showing a net expenditure of - - - £.	15,880	9	3
The corresponding figures for 1890-91 were—
Gross expenditure - - - - -	20,655	1	11
Credits - - - - -	4,881	5	-
Net expenditure. - - - - - £.	15,773	16	11
And for 1889-90—
Gross expenditure - - - - -	17,158	3	5
Credits - - - - -	4,233	12	2
Net expenditure - - - - - £.	12,924	11	3

The expenditure in the year 1891-92 has therefore only exceeded that of the preceding year by 100 l. It is nearly 3,000 l. in excess of the expenditure for the year 1889-90 (net 12,924 l.), but as stated in the last Return the expenditure for that year was abnormally small. It is anticipated that there will be a considerable increase in the expenditure for the current year 1892-93, which includes in the majority of cases the amounts shown in the costs column of the present Return (List A.), both on account of the increase in the number of prosecutions conducted by the Department, and also from the fact that in several cases it has been necessary to incur exceptional expense in obtaining evidence. Thus, in the recent case of Reg. v. Neill (T. Neill Cream), the Lambeth poisoning case, expenses were incurred by the Metropolitan Police in sending an officer to America to collect evidence, and these expenses were repaid from the Vote for Law Charges. The costs in this case amount to nearly 2,000 l. The county allowance was 23 l. 17 s.

List A., No. 221.

Supplemental
List A., No. 463.

List A. No. 9.

In the case of Reg. v. Bluhm and Others (Cosquer and Co.), a long firm case, in which there were eight Defendants, all being foreigners, the police expenses amounted to a considerable sum, viz., 260 l. 18 s. 11 d., and were repaid from the Vote.

Another exceptionally expensive prosecution was the important case of Reg. v. Caines and Others, charged with offences under the Explosive Substances Act, 1883 (the Walsall Conspiracy case), in which the costs were 1,752 l. 4 s. 9 d.

As stated in previous Returns, there is no reason to suppose that there will not be fluctuations from year to year in the total costs of criminal prosecutions;

in

° “(a.) The cases in which it shall be the duty of the Director of Public Prosecutions to institute, undertake, or carry on a criminal proceeding in respect of an offence, are the following.”

“ (d.) Where it appears to the Director that the offence or the circumstances of its commission is, or are, of such a character that a prosecution in respect thereof is required in the public interest, and that owing to the importance or difficulty of the case, or to other circumstances, the action of the Director of Public Prosecutions is necessary to secure the due prosecution of the offender.”

“ (2.) The proceedings to be instituted, undertaken, or carried on, in any of the above cases shall be such as the Director of Public Prosecutions considers to be necessary to secure the due prosecution of the offender.”

in some years, as in the year 1889-90, the amount may fall below the average of a number of years; while, for various reasons, it may in other years rise above the average.

When prosecutions are of the ordinary class, not entailing any exceptional expenditure, the county allowance amounts, on an average, to from 20 to 25 per cent. of the amount chargeable to the Vote. On the other hand, where, from the nature and importance of a prosecution, or the necessity of obtaining evidence from abroad, the case becomes more expensive than usual, the allowance from local funds does not bear the same proportion to the total cost, and the expenditure from the Vote for Law Charges is heavier accordingly. This is exemplified in the case above referred to (Reg. v. Neill), in which the county allowance, as already stated, was 23 l. 17 s., the costs paid by the Department being 1,989 l. 9 s. 8 d.

In the Return for 1887, at page 4, will be found a tabular statement, showing the expenditure under this Sub-head, and Sub-head II. of Vote 2, Class III., as taken from the Appropriation Accounts for that year, and for the four years immediately preceding, and the four years immediately succeeding the appointment of the present Director, and the establishment of the present system.

Parliamentary
Paper 335.
9 August 1888.

These figures show a diminution of 17,211 l. on the Vote for the Director's Department, and of 44,757 l. on the repayment to counties and boroughs, and a total diminution of cost to the public of 61,968 l. on a comparison of four years with four years, being an average of 15,492 l. for each of those four years.

In the Return for 1889, at page 6, will be found corresponding tabular statements for the five years immediately preceding, and the five years immediately succeeding the establishment of the present system.

Parliamentary
Paper 135,
18 April 1890.

These figures show an increase of 2,269 l. over the preceding year on the Vote for the Director's Department, and an increase of 22,173 l. over the preceding year on the repayment to counties and boroughs, but a total diminution of cost to the public of 54,165 l. on a comparison of five years with five years, being an average of 10,833 l. for each of those five years.

In order that this Return may be as far as possible complete in itself, and readily comprehensible, some of the formal explanations contained in previous Returns have been here repeated.

The Local Government Act, 1888 (which, with respect to the costs of Criminal Prosecutions, came into operation on the 1st April 1889), by transferring the expenditure previously provided for under Class III., Vote 2, Sub-head H., for repayments to counties, to the county councils, does away with that sub-head altogether.

The figures, therefore, are not now obtainable, which will enable a comparison to be made and an average arrived at, as was done in previous Returns, of the total costs of Criminal Prosecutions for each financial year, under the two sub-heads of Votes 1 and 2 of Class III.

MINT PROSECUTIONS.

Lists A. and B. do not include Mint Prosecutions.

The Treasury Solicitor became Solicitor to the Mint on the abolition of the latter Department in 1851, and has since then conducted, and still conducts, all Mint prosecutions, both in London and the country; in London before the police magistrates, and, after committal, at the several Courts of Quarter Sessions, and at the Central Criminal Court, without the intervention of agents; in the country, preparing the briefs and indictments at the Treasury, and forwarding them to his country agents for presentation of the bills to the Grand Jury, and the briefs for delivery to counsel nominated by the Attorney General.

Parliamentary
Paper, 114,
15 March 1892,
pages 13—18.

For the purpose of these Returns it has not been thought necessary to give the particulars of all these cases, which, as above stated, are not included in Lists A. and B. in the Appendix.

See Parliamentary Paper, No. 114, 15 March 1892, pages 14—15, for corresponding Tables.

The following Tabular Statements (i.), (ii.), (iii.) contain statistics of Mint Prosecutions conducted by the Treasury Solicitor, as Solicitor to the Mint, during the period comprised in this Return (from 1st January 1892 to 31st December 1892):—

Number of Cases Reported.		Cases Dismissed.		Cases Prosecuted.
Metropolitan.	Country.	Metropolitan.	Country.	Metropolitan.	Country.
145	45	62	15	83	30
TOTALS - 190		77		113

The following gives the number of persons prosecuted and the results:—

(ii.)

Number of Prisoners Prosecuted.		RESULTS.
		Discharged.		Acquitted.		Convicted.		Committed but not yet tried.
Metropolitan.	Country.	Metropolitan.	Country.	Metropolitan.	Country.	Metropolitan.	Country.	Metropolitan.	Country.

TOTALS - 242		88		26		126		2

And the following the nature of the particular charges:—

(iii.)

Uttering Silver.	Possessing Silver.	Uttering Gold.	Possessing Gold.	Uttering Medals.	Possessing Moulds.	Making Silver.	Gilding Silver.	Possessing Tools.	Impairing = Sixpence.	Lightening Gold.	Total.
148	31	4	1	5	nil	1	1	3	1	nil	195

The corresponding totals for previous years, comprised in previous Returns, may now be conveniently stated, for comparison with 1892:—

	Cases Reported.	Cases Dismissed.	Cases Prosecuted.
In 1887	316	89	226
In 1888	202		150
In 1889	147	44	103
In 1890	134	45	89
In 1891	132	37	94
In 1892	190	77	113

The first noticeable observation on these figures is, that the number in Column 1 shows a gradual decrease from 1887 to 1891, and that while the past year 1892 shows a marked increase over the three previous years, it does not much exceed half the number of 1887, and in Column 3 is exactly half the number in 1887.

Again, comparing the particulars given in the second and third tables in the Return for 1889, 1890, and 1891, with the corresponding Tables (i.), (ii.), (iii.), in this Return.

	Cases Reported.	Persons Charged.	Discharged.	Committed for Trial.	Convicted.	Acquitted.
In 1889 - -	147	Comprising 194 -	57	132	110	22
In 1890 - -	134	" 169 -	49	118	95	23
In 1891 - -	132	" 185 -	45	139	110	29
In 1892 - -	190	" 242 -	88	154	126	26

Two committed, but not yet tried.

There has been an increase of 58 in the number of cases reported, the number being 190 in the year 1892, as against 132 in the year 1891.

Of the 190, 145 were metropolitan cases, and the remaining 45 country cases, thus showing in the metropolitan cases an increase of 74, and in the country cases a decrease of 16 (see Table I.).

During the year 1892 there were 77 cases dismissed, as against 37 in 1891. Of the 77, 62 were metropolitan cases, whilst the remaining 15 were country cases, thus showing in the metropolis an increase of 35, and in the country an increase of five cases (see Table I.).

The total number of cases prosecuted for the year 1892 was 113, as against 95 in 1891. Of the 113, 83 were metropolitan cases, and the remaining 30 country cases.

On comparison with the figures in last year's Return it will be seen that there is an increase in the year 1892 of 39 metropolitan cases prosecuted, and a decrease of 21 country cases prosecuted (see Table I.).

The number of persons charged during 1892 was 242, as against 185 in 1891, showing an increase of 57 on the figures of 1891. Of these 242, 183 were in the metropolis, and the remaining 59 in the country.

Comparing this classification with that of the previous year, it appears there was an increase of 87 in the metropolis, and a decrease of 30 in the country (see Table II.).

The number of persons discharged by the magistrates during 1892 were 88, as against 45 in 1891. Of the 88, 69 were metropolitan, and the remaining 19 country prisoners, thus showing in the metropolis an increase of 37, and in the country an increase of 6 (see Table II.).

The number tried and acquitted in 1892 was 26, as against 29 in 1891. Of these 26, 22 were in the metropolis, and the remaining 4 in the country. On comparing this with 1891, there will be found in the metropolis an increase of 5, and in the country a decrease of 8 acquittals.

The total number of persons actually convicted was 126, as against 110 in 1891. Of these 126, 91 were convicted in the metropolis, and the remaining 35 in the country.

Comparing the number of convictions with those of 1891, it is noticeable that in the metropolis there were 91 convictions in 1892, as against 47 in 1891, showing an increase of 44 in 1892.

In the country there was a decrease of 28 convictions. The figures for 1892 being 35, as against 63 in 1891 (vide Table II.).

A comparison of the figures in Table III. for 1891 and 1892 shows a marked decrease in the graver offences of possession of moulds, being 5 in 1892, as against 15 in 1891.

The figures relating to the other offences show only slight variations.

The circumstances of the following cases may here be noticed:—

John C., and Matilda C., his wife, and Annie C., John's daughter, were charged before the magistrates at Birmingham on the 11th of January, with possessing a mould. The magistrate discharged the women, and committed John C., who was tried and convicted at the Birmingham Assizes; a previous conviction was then proved against him for uttering and possessing silver, and he was sentenced to three years' penal servitude.

Emma C., Sarah Ann C. (members of John C.'s family), and Jane J., were committed to the same Assizes for trial on a joint charge of uttering counterfeit silver coin. Emma C. was convicted, and several previous convictions for coinage offences were proved against her. She was sentenced to 12 months' hard labour, Sarah Ann C. was acquitted, and Jane J. was convicted and sentenced to 14 days' imprisonment.

George W., Charles G., and Bridget W., were charged at Bow-street on the 15th August with making a mould. The police had kept observation for some weeks from a room overlooking that in which two of the prisoners were living, and were able to see distinctly what the inmates were doing.

On the morning of the arrest the three were together in the room, and the officers, from their point of observation, seeing them preparing to make a mould, entered the house and arrested the three prisoners. In the room all preparations were complete for the manufacture of the moulds, and had the officers arrived a few minutes later, they would probably have found a finished mould with an impression upon it. As it was they found the frame with a glass bottom with two coins glued to it, ready to take the impression of the moist plaster of paris, which one of the prisoners had in his hands. On the 12th of September, at the Central Criminal Court, C. G. was convicted and sentenced to four months' hard labour. G. W. was convicted, and a previous conviction, for possessing moulds, for which he had been sentenced to 10 years' penal servitude, having been proved against him, was sentenced to five years' penal servitude, and Bridget W. was acquitted.

William J., 61 years of age, was charged at Southwark on the 7th of September with uttering and possessing counterfeit silver coin. On the 12th of September he was convicted at the Central Criminal Court, and five previous convictions having been proved against him for coinage offences, the first being in the year 1854, he was sentenced to three years' penal servitude.

Maurice C. was charged at the Thames Police Court with feloniously uttering counterfeit silver coin, and convicted at the December Sessions of the Central Criminal Court, and five previous convictions were then proved against him for coinage offences, the first being in the year 1875, he was sentenced to 10 years' penal servitude.

William B. (52), and Edward P. (36), were charged at the Clerkenwell Police Court with uttering counterfeit silver coin, and possessing moulds. At their trial at the Central Criminal Court both prisoners were convicted. P. was sentenced to 12 months' hard labour, and B., against whom four previous convictions for similar offences were proved, was sentenced to 14 years' penal servitude.

William S. (24), and Alfred C. (21), were detained at Marylebone Police Station as persons suspected of uttering counterfeit coin. Whilst in the station and while S. was reading a page of "Tit Bits," the front cover of which was wanting, a police constable brought in a packet of counterfeit coins wrapped up in a portion of the cover of "Tit Bits," which exactly corresponded with the copy of "Tit Bits," both in the date and the tear, with the portion in S.'s possession.

On further enquiries it was ascertained that the packet of coins was discovered about the time of S.'s arrest by a woman in the kitchen of her house abutting on the back yard of the house in which S. lodged shortly before his arrest. Probably anticipating his arrest S. had thrown the coins into the kitchen of the next house, breaking the window. Both prisoners were tried at the Central Criminal Court, and S., who had been twice previously convicted for coinage offences, was sentenced to seven years' penal servitude, and C. to 18 months' hard labour.

James P. (38), was charged at Lambeth Police Court with feloniously uttering counterfeit silver coin, and was tried at the Central Criminal Court, when five previous convictions for similar offences being recorded against him, he was sentenced to 10 years' penal servitude.

Frederick McD. and Fritz M. were charged with gilding four Jubilee sixpences, and uttering them as half-sovereigns. Both pleaded guilty, and expressed sorrow for what they had done, and on evidence of previous good character, they were discharged on recognisances, their own with sureties, to come up for judgment when called upon.

In the Returns for 1890, pages 7, 8, and for 1891 pages 15-18, will be found some particulars of the more important prosecutions, and of the sentences passed on the persons convicted.

Parliamentary
Paper, 139,

Parliamentary
Paper, 114,
13 March 1892.

In the year 1872 the Director (then Assistant Solicitor to the Treasury) was requested to make a Report to the Lords of the Treasury, with reference to the criminal business of the Department. This report was printed in the Treasury, but has never been made public, and in it certain particulars were given relating to Mint prosecutions between the years 1854—1871.

These are now printed in the Appendix to this return, and afford a curious illustration and confirmation of the inference arising from the particulars given of cases during the years 1890, 1891, and 1892 as to the profession so to say, "running in families," of its profitable character and of the failure of the severe sentences of imprisonment and penal servitude to deter those who have once commenced from returning to the profession at the expiration of their sentences.

Appendix H.

There can be little doubt but that if similar particulars could now be given for the 20 years since 1872 to the present time, very similar results would be shown.

It would seem that when once taken up the profession of coining and uttering is seldom abandoned, and it must be remembered that the numbers of charges and convictions probably bear but a small proportion to the numbers of successful utterings.

The profession, in spite of its risks, continues to be both attractive and lucrative.

CAPITAL OFFENCES AND OTHER OFFENCES AGAINST THE PERSON.

It is the duty of the Director under the Statutes and Regulations "to institute undertake, or carry on a criminal proceeding."

"Where the offence is punishable with death, and where it appears to the Director that the offence or the circumstances of its commission is or are of such a character that a prosecution in respect thereof is required in the public interest, and that owing to the importance or the difficulty of the case, or to other circumstances, the action of the Director is necessary to secure the due prosecution of the offender."

It is the duty of the Chief Officer of every Police District to give to the Director information :—

"With respect to every offence punishable by death, and with respect to an indictable offence not punishable by death, if the offence appears to the chief officer to be of such importance or difficulty that the assistance of the Director is desirable."

The number and the results of the prosecutions for capital offences and other crimes of violence, as well as for all indictable offences during each year, with statistics of convictions, acquittals, and sentences passed, &c., all duly classified with averages and percentages in almost every conceivable form, will be found in the "Judicial Statistics for England and Wales," printed as a Parliamentary Blue Book for each year, in Part I., under the head of "Criminal Proceedings."

The Judicial Statistics also give, under their different headings, the number of cases undertaken by the Director and brought to a conclusion within the year; those numbers, therefore, do not coincide with these in the Director's Returns to Parliament, which are given in accordance with the terms of the Order of the House of Commons. "The Proceedings instituted by the Director," are those in which applications are received by the Director from the 1st of January down to the 31st of December in each year, many of which are not "brought to a conclusion" within the 12 months; that is before the following 31st of December which are given in the Supplemental Lists in the Return for the following year.

The Annual Reports of the Directors of Convict Prisons also contain the sentences passed, and the numbers of convicts under sentence during each year.

The Annual Report of the Commissioners of Police for the Metropolis contain statistics relating to offences of all descriptions committed within the metropolitan area.

It is not, therefore, necessary to repeat in this Return particulars and statistics which cannot be made complete, and which will be found already classified and arranged in those Reports and Returns, which are accessible to everyone.

It may be interesting, however, to give the statistics of the murder and manslaughter cases, compiled from the Returns for 1890, 1891, and 1892, as showing a somewhat remarkable approximation in some of the numbers under those heads.

In accordance with the two codes of Regulations, all charges of murder are, and most charges of manslaughter, and of other serious offences against the person are, or ought to be, brought to the notice of the Director, so that he may exercise the discretion imposed upon him with reference to this class of indictable offences.

When a charge of murder has been preferred, or circumstances are brought to the notice of the Director by the Chief Officer of Police, or any other person, which appear to the Director to justify the institution of proceedings against any person or persons, the Director undertakes the conduct of those proceedings in London, or instructs an agent in the country, who acts under his directions, and those cases in which he has done so will be found in List "A."

During the year 1892 the number of murder charges, including 11 of child murder, was 61.

In 17 of these, verdicts of wilful murder were returned, and sentences of death passed, in two of which the sentences were commuted to penal servitude for life.

In 16, verdicts of not guilty were returned.

In 11, the accused were found to be insane, either before or after trial.

In 20, the accused were acquitted of wilful murder, but convicted of manslaughter, and sentenced to penal servitude for various terms, viz., two being for 20 years, one for 14 years, one for 12 years, three for 10 years, three for five years, and the remainder for lesser terms, varying from 18 months hard labour to one calendar month's imprisonment.

The following tabular statement gives the number of cases under this heading, i.e., Capital Offences, for 1890, 1891, and 1892:—

Year.	Number of Charges of Murder.	Verdicts of Wilful Murder returned, and Sentences of Death passed.	Verdicts of Not Guilty.	Accused found Insane before or after Trial.	Acquitted of Murder, but Convicted of Manslaughter.
In 1890 - -	84	19	14	22	24
In 1891 - -	94	19	10	18	19
In 1892 - -	61	17	16	11	20

The crimes included under the definition of "Manslaughter" vary, so as to include cases which are sometimes scarcely distinguishable from wilful murder, or from justifiable homicide, or homicide by misadventure, and entail on the persons convicted sentences varying from penal servitude for life, down to one day's imprisonment.

In exercising his discretion as to these cases, in which he will undertake the prosecution, prosecution, and those which he will leave to take their ordinary course in the hands of the police or the private prosecutor, the Director has to consider not only the question of moral guilt, but the nature of the evidence procurable, the difficulty, if any, of the proof, and the presence or absence of any circumstances which may probably be used as matters of prejudice either in favour or against the person accused, at his trial.

It does not follow that prosecutions are not properly instituted, or that convictions are not obtained in many of the cases left to take their ordinary course, and given in List B.

During 1892 the Director undertook the conduct of the prosecutions on charges of manslaughter in 32 cases, including charges against 46 persons, as given in List A., and declined to interfere in 82 cases as given in List B.

Of these 32 cases, 19 persons were convicted, on one of whom a sentence of 12 years' penal servitude was passed, four being sentenced to 18 months, one to 16 months, one to 15 months, and two to 12 months' hard labour; while the remainder were either acquitted altogether, or, when convicted, nominal sentences passed, or discharged, to come up for judgment when called upon.

The charges of Manslaughter during 1890, 1891, and 1892, may be summarised, as follows :—

Year.	Number of Charges of Manslaughter.	Convicted.	Verdicts of Not Guilty, or Discharged.
In 1890 - - - -	48	19	29
In 1891 - - - -	48	20	28
In 1892 - - - -	32 (47 prisoners.)	19	28

The most remarkable case of murder during the past year was that of—

Reg. v. Neill, otherwise Cream.—The prisoner was committed at Bow-street Police Court, and indictments were preferred, and true bills found at the September Sessions of the Central Criminal Court, on four separate charges of murder by poison, of Matilda Clover, of Ellen Donworth, of Alice Marsh, and of Emma Shrivell, on a charge of administering poison with intent to murder Louisa Harris, and with writing letters demanding money, with menaces, threatening to accuse three several persons of certain of the above offences. He was tried and convicted on the first indictment, which charged the murder of Matilda Clover, and the other indictments were not proceeded with. He was sentenced to death, and executed. No. 221, List A.

The charges of rape and attempts to rape dealt with by the Director during the past year were much fewer in number and of less serious character than during the years 1890 and 1891, having been 15 in 1890, 9 in 1891, and 6 in 1892. Note •

No. 161, List A., a charge of an attempt to commit a rape, preferred before a police magistrate the accused was convicted of a common assault, and sentenced to two months' hard labour.

No. 180, List A., the accused was discharged by the magistrates; and Nos. 223, 228, 499, 610, 681, in List B., the Director gave advice and declined to interfere, or left case to take its ordinary course.

During the year 1892, there were 20 cases of charges under, or of offences which might have been made the subjects of charges under various sections of the Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1885.

Of these, 6 were undertaken by the Director, and appear in List A., No. 26 being the most serious, where the accused was convicted at the Lincoln Assizes, and sentenced to 7 years' penal servitude. No. 94, the accused was tried at the Leeds Assizes, and acquitted. No. 124, at the Northampton Assizes, the • Note.—For Report of Trial, see Central Criminal Court Sessions Papers, No. CXVI., October Sessions, pages 1417—1460.

the grand jury ignored the bill. No. 322, the accused was convicted at the Central Criminal Court, and sentenced to 12 months' hard labour; and No. 125 and No. 346, the charge was dismissed by the police magistrate.

In the 14 cases in List B., the Director either gave advice, or left the case to take its ordinary course.

The number of cases dealt with are fewer than in the years 1890 and 1891, and with the exception of those in which the sentences were 7 years' penal servitude, and 12 months' hard labour, apparently of a less serious character.

But with respect both to charges of rape and of offences under the Criminal Law Amendment Act, which come under the Director's notice, no inference as to the prevalence or otherwise of these offences can properly be drawn, inasmuch as it is only when either from the circumstances having been of exceptional character, or more often from the fact of the evidence being unsatisfactory, that applications are made to the Director, either for advice or to undertake the prosecution.

Judging from the reports which appear in the newspapers of trials at the assizes, it is to be feared that the cases under the Criminal Law Amendment Act, in which prosecutions have been instituted, or which have been dealt with by the local police, and prosecutions conducted by local solicitors all over the country during the year 1892, are neither fewer nor less serious than during the years 1890 and 1891.

The Director called attention under this heading at page 20 of his last year's Return, to several prosecutions on which convictions were obtained, with the efficient assistance of the Criminal Investigation Department of New Scotland Yard, against the dealers in obscene literature and indecent pictures, photographs, &c., and to the deservedly heavy sentences passed on the offenders.

During the past year there have been no such prosecutions at the instance of the Director, but there have been 12 cases, which will be found in List B., in which applications have been made to the Director, or his attention called to alleged offences and offenders of this description.

In all of these cases he has either given advice to the applicants, or referred the matter to the police in the metropolis or in the country, and it is believed that the successful prosecutions instituted, and the efficient action taken under the provisions of Lord Campbell's Act by the seizure and destruction of stock in trade of the offenders, during the previous year, has gone far towards checking offences of this character.

It is probable that there are not now many dealers in this description of literature who care to run the risk of keeping a stock of obscene books or photographs on their premises for sale to chance customers, but who obtain any particular book or picture from abroad when asked for. All such articles would be stopped when passing through the Custom House; but they can be, and it is well known that they are, forwarded through the Post Office, and unless the letters or covers containing them become by accident open, or so damaged as to render the contents visible, they are safely delivered to the addressees.

No case such as that referred to at page 21 of the last year's Return (No. 284, 400 of List A. of that Return) has come under the Director's notice during the year 1892.

FRAUDS AND OFFENCES RELATING TO PROPERTY.

The Director desires to refer to his observations under the corresponding heading in his two previous Returns for 1890, pages 11—13; and for 1891, pages 21, 22; and to repeat, for the purposes of reference, the following paragraph with which those observations commenced:—

"It is with respect to this class of crimes or offences, as distinguished from crimes of violence, or offences against the person, that the action of the Director has hitherto been more especially subject to adverse criticism, not only in the public press, and especially in 'financial' newspapers, and by private individuals, but also in Parliament."

The

The Director is now glad to be able to say that the adverse criticisms in the "public press," so far as they have come under his notice, have not only almost ceased, but on the contrary his action with respect to this class of prosecutions has been referred to in terms of commendation. With respect to "private individuals," the criticisms have mostly been by persons who continue apparently to ignore the provisions of the Statutes and of the Regulations, and the annual discussions in Parliament, when the Vote for the Director's Department has been considered in Committee of Supply; while with respect to "Parliament," the Vote was agreed to last year, without the usual motion for the reduction of the Director's salary.

The Director desires also to refer to his observations under this head at page 22 of his Return for last year, with reference to his action under the Companies Winding-up Act. 1890, 53 & 54 Vict. c. 63. Parliamentary Paper, No. 125, 15 March 1891.

Of the three cases there mentioned (page 23)—

Reg. v. Gilbert (The Gold Queen Mining Company, Limited), then pending, No. 304, List A. in that year's Return, has since been concluded, the Defendant having been convicted and sentenced to three years' penal servitude. No. 304, Supplemental List A. for this year.

Reg. v. Bottomley and Others (Hansard Union), is still pending. No. 268, Ditto ditto.

Some of the more important prosecutions under this head, in addition to those above named, may be briefly noticed:—

Reg. v. Holden.—A prosecution at the instance of the War Office.*

No. 37, List A.

At the Liverpool Assizes in April 1892, the Defendant, a Quartermaster in the Royal Engineers, was indicted under 52 & 53 Vict. c. 52 (the Official Secrets Act, 1889), Section 2 (Sub-section 1), and Section 3, with attempting to procure from and inciting one M'C., holding an office under Her Majesty, to give information respecting the fortifications at Malta, thereby committing a breach of official trust; an offence made a misdemeanour by those sections, and punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both, up to one year's hard labour.

The jury found the Defendant guilty, and the Lord Chief Justice, in passing sentence, said that if the prisoner had been charged and convicted of communicating or attempting to communicate the information to a foreign state, he would have been guilty of a felony under the Act, and liable to penal servitude for life. As it was he passed upon the prisoner the full extent of the punishment awarded by the Act for the misdemeanour of which he had been convicted, i.e., 12 months' imprisonment with hard labour.

Reg. v. Moran.—A prosecution at the instance of the War Office. No. 174, List A.
At Reading Assizes, November 1892, the prisoner, who was a soldier in the 3rd Battalion of the Berkshire Regiment, and employed as Orderly Room Clerk at Reading, was indicted for stealing two money orders, and forging receipts, the orders having been sent to the Adjutant by the relatives of two men who had enlisted in the battalion for the purpose of purchasing their discharge. Fictitious discharges were forwarded from the Orderly Room, which were proved to be in the handwriting of the prisoner. A considerable number of witnesses were called by the prosecution, and also by the prisoner, who in his defence endeavoured to implicate a fellow soldier.

The jury convicted the prisoner, and Mr. Justice Day, in passing sentence, remarked on the endeavour to cast the blame on an innocent man, and described the prisoner's offence as one of the worst cases of larceny he had ever known, passed a sentence of seven years' penal servitude.†

Reg. v. Morgan, Tolmie, Sir G. Campbell, Clarke, Stedman, Tompkins, and Sherwin.—The Defendants, or some of them, had for many years been advertising themselves as Directors or managers of "Companies" under various names, inter alia, the Charing Cross Publishing Company, the City of London Publishing Company, the Berners' Gallery, Limited, the London and Provincial Literary Association, the Author's Alliance, the International Union of Art, Literature, and Science, undertaking the publication of manuscripts and treatises No. 213, List A.

* See Report in "Manchester Guardian," Saturday, 9th April 1892, and "Standard" newspaper of Monday, 11th April 1892.

treatises sent to them, obtaining subscriptions for the exhibition and sale of works of art, granting diplomas, &c., and by such means obtaining money from persons of all classes in society. The trial at the September Sessions of the Central Criminal Court lasted for seven days, and resulted in the conviction of five of the Defendants on various counts of the indictment. Morgan was sentenced to 8 years, Tomkins to 5 years penal servitude, Sir G. Campbell to 18 months Stedman to 15 months, Tolmie 6 months, and Clarke to 4 months' hard labour. Sherwin was acquitted.

And Appendix G.

Reg. v. Margaret Smith, Allistone, Paul, Micklethwait, and Sarah Ingram.—The circumstances of this case have been dealt with, ante page 7. The Defendants were all convicted, and Smith was sentenced to 10 years, Micklethwait to 7 years, Paul to 5 years' penal servitude, and Allistone to 12 months' hard labour.

No. 290, List A.

Reg. v. Haydon and Twelve Others.—This was a "Long Firm" case, in which 13 persons were charged with conspiracy to defraud various persons, and obtaining money by false pretences. They were all convicted, and four of them sentenced to 10 years' penal servitude, one to 9 years, one to 5 years, one to 4 years, four to 3 years' penal servitude, one to 12 months, and one to 9 months' hard labour.

PERJURY, SUBORNATION OF PERJURY, and FALSE DECLARATIONS punishable as PERJURY.

The Director in his Return for 1891, at page 24, gave in a tabular form statistics for the years 1887, 1888, 1889, 1890, and 1891, to which may now be added those for the year 1892.

For the Year	Number of Applications from Lists A. and B.	Number of Cases Declined.	Number of Cases Undertaken.	Number of Acquittals or Discharges.	Number of Convictions.
1887 - - - -	40	27	13	5	8

(a) Of the three cases "pending" in 1891, in two (Nos. 72 and 278 in Supplemental List A.), the Defendants were acquitted; and in one (No. 429, Supplemental List A.), the case of Reg. v. Peters, the result of which was given in a note at page 52 of the Return for last year, the Defendant having been tried and convicted at the Northampton Assizes in March 1892, and sentenced to 12 months' hard labour.

(b) Under this heading the Director desires to refer to two prosecutions for perjury committed on the hearing of Election Petitions, the particulars of which are given post in a note to p. 27, and in which the trials, having taken place since the 31st December 1892, do not properly come within this year's Return. But inasmuch as both prosecutions were instituted by the Director on his own responsibility, and both were successful, and sentences of nine months' hard labour and three months' hard labour (the latter in the Director's judgment a lenient sentence under the circumstances) were passed on the Defendants, he calls attention to them for this reason also under both headings in this Return.

and three cases are still pending. Of these Reg. v. Upton (No. 372, List A.) perjury, committed in the course of bankruptcy proceedings, has, since the above was in type, been tried at March Sessions of the Central Criminal Court, and Defendant convicted and sentenced to three months' hard labour.

In 1887 the heaviest sentence was 12 months' hard labour ;
the lightest sentence was 6 weeks' hard labour.

In 1888 the heaviest sentence was 12 months' hard labour ;
the lightest sentence was 2 weeks' hard labour.

In 1889 the heaviest sentence was 5 years' penal servitude (Feeley's case) ;
the lightest sentence was 3 months' hard labour.

In 1890 the heaviest sentence was 6 months' hard labour ;
the lightest sentence was 14 days' imprisonment.

In 1891 the heaviest sentence was 8 years' penal servitude ;
the lightest sentence was 4 days' imprisonment.

In 1892 the heaviest sentence was 12 months' hard labour ;
the lightest sentence was to come up for judgment when called upon.

It will be seen that in the eight cases where convictions were obtained, one sentence was passed of 12 months' hard labour, two of 6 months' hard labour, one of 4 months' hard labour, three of 6 weeks' hard labour, and one Defendant was discharged on recognizances to come up for judgment. See Note (b) previous page.

In the above tabular statement are not included three cases undertaken at the instance of the Registrar General for making false declarations relating to marriage or birth certificates, in two of which the Defendants were acquitted, and in one on conviction a sentence of three months' hard labour was passed. (a)

Under the above tabular statement are not included 19 cases in which proceedings were instituted by the Director at the instance of the Admiralty, or War Office, against recruits and others for false statements or false declarations, dealt with summarily by justices, or in which sentences varying from six days' to 14 days' imprisonment were passed.

Among the cases prosecuted, the following are some of the most remarkable :—

Reg. v. Usher.—In a suit under the Legitimacy Declaration Act of Bain v. The Attorney General (b) the petitioner, Mary Bain, sought from the Court a Declaration that she was the legitimate child of Ralph and Mary Usher, as the issue of a valid marriage between those persons. Ralph and Mary Usher were cited as parties, and gave evidence in the proceedings before Sir Charles Butt, in the course of which Ralph Usher swore that Mary Bain was not his child, and denied that he had ever admitted that she was. He was contradicted as to these admissions by the evidence of several witnesses, and the President, after four days' hearing, stated that he disbelieved the evidence given by Ralph Usher, gave judgment in favour of the Petitioner, and ordered the documents given in evidence to be impounded. No. 67, List A.

The Director, on motion made in Court under Rule 32A, obtained the documents, and, in accordance with the advice of counsel, preferred a charge of perjury against Ralph Usher before the Chief Magistrate at Bow-street, which, after several days' hearing, was dismissed by Sir John Bridge, who at the same time stated that in his opinion the prosecution was fully justified by the proceedings in the Probate Court.

It will be seen that the decision come to by the President of the Probate Court, in favour of the Petitioner, was not impugned by that of the Chief Magistrate, though the latter dismissed the charge of perjury against Usher. Sir John Bridge, in giving his judgment, explained his reasons for so doing :—

“ that

(a) Also the case of Dr. Graham (No. 379, List A.), who was committed for trial in 1892, but was tried and convicted at the January 1893 Session of the Central Criminal Court, for having given a false certificate of death in the case of Reg. v. Nell (alias Cream), No. 221, List A., and, being recommended to mercy, was discharged on his own recognizances to come up for judgment if called upon.

(b) For report of Bain v Attorney General, see Law Reports, Vol. II. Probate, p. 217 and 261, and “Times” of 15th February 1892, and for report of Sir John Bridge's decision in Reg. v. Usher at Bow-street, see “Times” of 14th May, 1892.

“ that there were two possible solutions of the case, one in favour of guilt, and one in favour of innocence. In such a case any jury would give the Defendant the benefit. No one could be more conscious than himself of the extreme evil of perjury, and the necessity for prosecuting it, and the proceedings in the Probate Court fully justified the prosecution in this case. There was conclusive evidence that legally Mrs. Mary Bain was the daughter of Mrs. Usher, born in wedlock, but the evidence was not conclusive that the Defendant had wilfully sworn falsely. He had nothing to gain by such a crime. He had shown by acts of kindness his sympathy with this child. The circumstances suggested an improbability that he had sworn falsely.” (a)

No. 165, List A.

Reg. v. Weston.—The Defendant Weston in this case was Plaintiff in an action of Weston v. Smith in the Manchester County Court, before His Honour Judge Heywood, who gave judgment for the Defendant Smith with costs, and according to the report in the Manchester newspapers added “ a copy of the evidence will be sent to the Treasury or the Director of Public Prosecutions, with a representation that, in my opinion, the Plaintiff committed wilful and corrupt perjury during the hearing of the cause. An Act of Parliament empowers me to commit the Plaintiff for trial to the next Assizes, without the necessity for any examination before the magistrates, but it would be far more satisfactory to me that the criminal charge should be investigated by an independent tribunal in the ordinary way, and I do not, therefore, exercise this power.”

Note (b).

His Honour communicated with the Lord Chancellor, whose secretary forwarded the papers to the Director, who accordingly instructed his agent at Manchester to obtain the necessary evidence, and prefer a charge before the stipendiary magistrate, and ask for the committal of Weston for trial at the Assizes.

When the case came on to be heard before the magistrate, witnesses were called for Weston, and in the result the learned stipendiary expressed his opinion that perjury had been committed, but that the evidence was so conflicting that he did not think any jury would convict, and accordingly he dismissed the charge. (c)

No. 110, List A.

Reg. v. Langburn.—The Defendant was a witness on a Judgment Summons in the Yorkshire County Court. The case has been noticed, ante p. 6, and post, Appendix E, but is referred to here as a remarkable instance of the breakdown of a prosecution for perjury undertaken by the Director. The Justices had committed for trial, the Grand Jury at the Assizes had found a true Bill, with the approval of the Judge; but at the trial, on the cross-examination of a Witness for the Crown, Counsel retired from the case, with the approval of the Judge, who said “ the case had utterly collapsed,” that “ if he had the power he would grant costs to the Defendant,” and that “ the prosecution was one which ought never to have been brought,” and the Jury, under the Judges directions, returned a verdict of “ Not guilty.”

List A., No. 331.

Reg. v. Hartt.—In this case one of the revising barristers for the county of Norfolk reported to the Director that in his opinion the Defendant had committed perjury, in support of his claim before the revising barrister to be inserted in the list of Parliamentary voters for the county, forwarding copy of his notes of the evidence. The Director accordingly instructed his agent to obtain all the additional evidence obtainable to support such charge, and to prefer it before the justices, and ask for a committal of the Defendant for trial at the Assizes.

This was done, and the Defendant committed for trial, and tried at the Norwich Assizes in November 1892, when the jury returned a verdict of “ Not guilty.”

Reg. v. Cotton.—The Defendant was charged, under 41 & 42 Vict. c. 26 (the Parliamentary and Municipal Registration Act, 1878), with making a false statement of fact with respect to a claim to vote as a lodger at a Parliamentary election. This case was brought to the notice of the Director by the Revising Barrister for the Borough of Southwark.

The Director preferred a charge at the police court, and obtained the committal of the Defendant to November Sessions of the Central Criminal Court, where he was tried and convicted, and sentenced to six weeks' imprisonment without hard labour. (a)

List A., No. 320.

The Director, at page 25 of last year's Return, referred to the circumstances under which he preferred an indictment for perjury on evidence given by the petitioner and co-respondent in the case of Taplen v. Taplen and Owen, on an Intervention by the Queen's Proctor in the Divorce Court, on which indictment the petitioner and co-respondent were tried and convicted at the Central Criminal Court, calling attention to the fact that no such indictment had been preferred since the year 1884, on which occasion the person indicted had been acquitted.

Parliamentary Paper, No. 114, 15 March 1892.

The Director having forwarded prints of that Return to the late President (Sir Charles Butt) and to Sir Francis Jeune, the present President of the Probate Division, each of these learned Judges, in acknowledging the receipt of the Return, was good enough to express his opinion on the observations there submitted by the Director respecting prosecutions for perjury on evidence given by parties and witnesses in divorce suits; and the Director has now the permission of the President to print his letter in the Appendix, with an expression of his opinion that there would be no impropriety in so dealing with the letter of the late President.

Appendix J.

The question here discussed being of great importance to the administration of public justice, the Director is glad to avail himself of the permission thus given, and personally to find that the views he has expressed, and the course he has hitherto pursued, with respect to proceedings in the Divorce Court, have the approbation of such high authorities.

Again, at pages 29, 30 of his last year's Return, the Director submitted certain observations, and having forwarded a copy of his Return to Sir Richard Couch, has received from him a letter with reference to those observations, and permission to print such letter in the Appendix to the present Return.

Appendix, p. 124.

The Director's observations were (page 29 of last year's Return):—

“Whatever may be the effect of the change in the law which ‘The Evidence in Criminal Cases Bill,’ for making persons charged, and the wife and husband of such persons, competent witnesses, in facilitating the ascertaining of truth, it cannot have the effect of diminishing either the opportunities or the inducements to wilful false swearing in criminal trials.”

Parliamentary Paper, No. 114, 15 March 1892.

“Whether, if the power of committal given by the Statute of 1851 were more generally exercised, or the power confined to directing a charge to be preferred against the witness before a magistrate, instead of a direct committal of such witness for trial; whether, if such a power were conferred by Statute, and acted upon, the knowledge that such a power existed, and might be acted upon, would operate as a check upon wilful false swearing is, the Director submits, worthy of consideration.”

14 & 15 Vict. c. 100, s. 19, quoted pages 28, 29, and observations upon its application by Bovill, C. J., in action of Tichborne v. Lushington.

On this Sir Richard Couch observes:—

“I entirely agree with you. The power given by the Act of 1851 should be confined to directing a charge to be preferred before a magistrate. That is the power given by the law in India.”

And

(a) “Times,” Wednesday, 16th November 1892, and Central Criminal Court Sessions Paper, Vol. CXVII., Sessions I. to VI., p. 122.

And Sir Richard cites Sect. 643 of the Indian Code, as follows :—

“ When in any case pending before any Court there appears to the Court sufficient ground for sending for investigation to the magistrate on a charge of giving false evidence or fabricating false evidence for the purpose of being used in a judicial proceeding, the Court may cause the person accused to be detained till the rising of the Court, and may then send him in custody to the magistrate, or take sufficient bail for his appearance before the magistrate.

“ The Court shall send to the magistrate the evidence and documents relative to the charge, and may bind over any person to appear and give evidence before such magistrate. — The magistrate shall receive such charge, and proceed with it according to law.”

And with respect to the following paragraph (p. 30 of Director's last Return), which is as follows :—

“ It has also been suggested (a) that ‘ lying ’ or ‘ wilful false swearing ’ in a Court of Justice should be made per se an offence, with a lesser punishment attached to it than to ‘ perjury ’ itself; in other words, that the materiality to the issue of the fact sworn to might in some cases be disregarded, and the Court be empowered to treat such wilful false swearing as a contempt of Court, and either deal with the offender summarily or order him to be taken before a magistrate and charged with such offence, giving the magistrate power to deal summarily with such offender; or, if the evidence were sufficient, to commit such offender for trial for perjury.”

Sir Richard Couch writes :—

“ It is very difficult to form an opinion upon the suggestion at p. 30. I am inclined to think it should be treated as purely experimental. I should not like to give the Court before which the false swearing took place the power to punish it. In many cases a hasty and erroneous view might be taken of the evidence. For instance, in the case Re E. M. (Note), p. 9, the magistrate would most likely have punished the witness. I would give power to order the offender to be taken before a magistrate, and power to the magistrate to deal summarily with him, or to commit him for trial.”

The Director has also been in communication with Judges of the County Courts with respect to instances of alleged perjury brought to his notice by those learned Judges, and from two of them (His Honour Judge Price, Q.C., and His Honour Judge Owen) he has received permission to print the letters which will be found in the Appendix, one of which, it will be seen, refers to the letter of His Honour Judge Edge printed in last year's Return.

It would be presumption on the part of the Director to attempt by any further observations to add to the weight of opinions of the learned Judges whose letters he has been permitted to quote. He will only repeat the following observations from his last year's Return :—

“ A discretion as to the institution of prosecutions for perjury must always be exercised by somebody, and the Director submits that there can be no single individual who can have better opportunities of forming an opinion, not only as to whether a particular witness has wilfully sworn falsely, but whether sufficient contradictory evidence has been given, or may possibly be on further inquiry obtainable, than the Judge before whom such witness has given his evidence.”

And the concluding paragraphs under that heading of his last year's Return :—

“ There

(Note) In the case “ Re E. M., page 9,” of the Director's Return, quoted by Sir R. Couch, the magistrate's opinion was that “ the prosecutrix was a deliberate liar, and ought to be prosecuted for ‘ perjury.’ ” The Director agreed with the magistrate that the “ prosecutrix was a deliberate liar,” and believes, if the magistrate “ could have punished the witness,” instead of suggesting a prosecution for perjury, that she would have “ deserved ” such punishment. But he differed from the magistrate in his conclusion that “ she ought to be prosecuted for perjury,” because (and the magistrate subsequently came to the same conclusion) the circumstances were such that, on a prosecution for perjury, she would inevitably have been acquitted.

“ There can be no doubt that the present proceedings are cumbrous and uncertain, and the length of time which elapses between the commission of the offence and the punishment, when it does follow, seriously diminishes the effect of the punishment as a deterrent.

“ The question whether by legislation, in the language of the Act of 1851, ‘ prosecutions for perjury can be rendered more easy and effectual ; ’ in other words, whether the crime of perjury, or the habit of wilful false swearing in Courts of Justice, can be checked, without depriving those who may be accused thereof of proper opportunities for their defence, is, it is submitted, worthy of consideration by Parliament.”

APPLICATIONS made to, and Proceedings taken by the DIRECTOR, under the CORRUPT and ILLEGAL PRACTICES PREVENTION ACTS, PARLIAMENTARY and MUNICIPAL, and with respect to Offences connected with ELECTIONS, and the REGISTRATION OF VOTERS.

AT page 31 of the Director's Return for last year will be found references to his previous Returns on this subject, and at pages 33 to 38, the names of cases in which he has taken action, and of those in which he has declined to do so, since 1st June 1885, down to 31st December 1891.

Parliamentary
Paper, No. 114,
15 March 1892.

Since the date of that Return there has been a General Parliamentary Election, and notices have been given by the prescribed officer to the Director of the presentation of 10 Petitions, of which one was withdrawn and eight were tried, seven have been tried during the past year 1892, and one (for the Cirencester Division of Gloucestershire) has been disposed of since 31st December 1892, when the number of votes given to each Candidate was declared equal on a recount.

In each of the eight Petitions which were tried, the Director was represented by a barrister nominated by him and approved by the Attorney General, as required by 46 & 47 Vict. c. 51, Section 43, Sub-section 7. The Director's representative subsequently made a Report to him of the result of the Petition, and of any circumstances occurring during the hearing, which might call for any action by the Director.

In two cases the Judges ordered the Director's costs to be paid ; in the Hexham case by the Respondents ; in the Rochester case by the Petitioners.

In all the others the Director's expenses were, or will be, paid as provided by Sub-section 8 of Section 43 of 46 & 47 Vict. c. 51.

The results of the Petitions and the Director's expenses are given below.
The results were as follows :—

In the case of the Lichfield Division of Staffordshire, where the petition was withdrawn by leave of the Court, copies of the affidavits were delivered to the Director, in pursuance of the requirements of sub-section 5 of Section 41 of 46 & 47 Vict. c. 51, which, being satisfactory, he duly appeared by his representative, and offered no objection to the withdrawal.

In the Hastings Municipal Election a petition had been presented, alleging an illegal counting of votes, and after the Commissioner had appointed the day for the trial, affidavits on behalf of the petitioners in support of an application for leave to withdraw were forwarded to the Director, who did not oppose, and the petition was accordingly, by leave of the Court, withdrawn.

As will be seen from the Reports of the Election Judges, no subsequent action by the Director was required in respect of any election offences disclosed at the inquiries.

At the trial before the Election Judges of the Worcester Election Petition, certain evidence to prove bribery by an agent of the sitting Member was given on behalf of the Petitioners by one Higginbottom. This evidence was not believed or acted upon by the Judges, but was reported to the Director by his representative, and after further inquiries instituted by the Director's agent under his instructions, a charge of perjury was preferred against Higginbottom, on which he was committed for trial to the then ensuing Worcester Assizes. (a)

At the trial before the Election Judges of the Stepney Election Petition, evidence was given by one Samson Simon on behalf of the Petitioners of acts of bribery alleged to have been committed by a supporter of the sitting Member. This evidence was disbelieved by the Judges, and the particulars were reported to the Director by his representative.

Further inquiries were made by the Director, who subsequently (22nd February 1893) preferred a charge of perjury at Bow Street Police Court against Simons, on which he was committed for trial at the Central Criminal Court. (b)

(a) At the trial at the Worcester Assizes, on 16th February 1893, Higginbottom was convicted, and the Judge observed that the case was a very serious one, and that he did not know whether it was chiefly on the Defendant's evidence that the Petition was based, but certainly the evidence was quite enough to justify the Petitioners in putting forward the Petition, which, if proved, would have been enough to unseat the Member. The Defendant's false oath had resulted in the very large expense of the inquiry. Sentence, nine months' imprisonment, with hard labour.

See "Barrow's Worcester Journal" of 18th February 1893, and "Times" of 17th February 1893.

(b) The proceedings at the date of this Return were, and are, pending.

Since the above was in type the indictment came on to be tried at the March Sessions, 1893, of the Central Criminal Court, and resulted in the conviction of the Defendant, who was sentenced to three months' hard labour.

The Common Serjeant, in passing sentence, see "Times" of 17th March 1893, said, "The prisoner had been convicted of a most serious offence. Had the Judges acted upon the evidence given by the prisoner, the consequences might have been of the most serious nature for Mr. Isaacson, who not only would have been deprived of his seat, but who also would have had to pay enormous costs. He believed that the prisoner was but the tool of others. But for that he should have passed a much more severe sentence."

He sentenced the prisoner to three months' hard labour.

The Director desires to refer to his observations, ante p. 30, under the head of "perjury, subornation of perjury, &c.," with reference to the convictions obtained, and to the sentences passed in this case and the case of Reg. v. Higginbottom for perjury committed before the Election Judge on the trial of the Worcester Petition.

The proceedings in both these cases were instituted by the Director on information given him by his representative at the trial of these petitions, and after further inquiries made, by his directions, by his agents, and on his own responsibility.

The Director desires to refer to his observations at pages 49-52 of his Return for last year, and to the articles from the "Daily News" and "Echo" newspapers, printed in the Appendix to that Return, and before submitting further observations on the effect of the decision in Caminada v. Hulton (a) (page 49)—he refers to page 51—and to the last paragraph, which is as follows:—

"The public interest in the subject, both of lotteries and betting, has for the present, to a great extent, subsided. But there can be no doubt that the action taken by the Director, and subsequently by the Local Police Authorities, sometimes after communication with the Director, and often on their own initiative, has resulted in a great abatement of the evil, especially with respect to the so-called prize drawings, raffles, guessing or word competitions, during the period covered by the present Return.

"Numerous instances might be given, but those given in the note are cited as examples, and as showing that the steady enforcement of the law as it now exists (saving the decision in the case of Caminada v. Hulton), has already, to some considerable extent, diminished the evil.

"As long, however, as there are full-grown men and women, necessarily of tolerable education, who are sanguine or foolish enough to believe that a correct counting of the number of times the letter 'a' occurs in the Book of Genesis, and a payment of 1 s. 7 d. will entitle them to a prize of 50 l., and who think themselves ill-treated or defrauded if they receive nothing, or a few shillings, with the assurance that there were so many other successful competitors, that the share of each, when the 50 l. came to be distributed, amounted only to such a trifling sum, these guessing or word competitions will probably be carried on with or more less success, notwithstanding the risks incurred by the promoters.

"But, whether such persons are becoming more sensible, or warned by experience, or whether the successful action taken against some of the promoters, be the cause, there can be no doubt that the number of these 'competitions' has been considerably smaller during the year 1891 than during the year 1890, or preceding years."

With respect to the observation, "that the public interest, both with respect to the lotteries and betting, had (i.e., during the year 1891) to a great extent, subsided," the Director can only form an opinion from the cases which came under his notice, and a reference to Lists 'A' and 'B' in his Return for the years 1890 and 1891 will show:—

That in 1890, 131 applications on these subjects were made to the Director, in three of which (List A) he instituted prosecutions; and in 128 cases declined, referring the applicants either to the police, or to their own legal advisers (b).

That in 1891, the corresponding figures are 33 applications, three prosecutions (List A), and 30 refusals (List B), for various reasons.

That in 1892, 114 applications were made to him (in two of which, Nos. 333 and 365 in List A, he instituted proceedings, Reg. v. Gordon and Northbrook, and the "Pick-Me-Up" competitions, &c., post, page 56), and in the other, 112, either gave advice or referred the applicants to the police or their own legal advisers.

Of these 112 more than half the number, namely, 72, were made in the months of November and December, that is to say during the latter half of the year year 1892, when the Missing Word Competition "Craze," as it came subsequently to be known, came to its height.

It is not unlikely that the system to which the decision in Caminada v. Hulton gave a judicial sanction, the sporting newspapers' system of gambling by means of "Coupons," a system which was also declared not to bring the promoters within the Betting House Acts or the Acts passed for the suppression of illegal lotteries, was adapted by the proprietors of serial publications for the "Missing Word Competitions," certain of which competitions have since been declared to be illegal as lotteries.

The Director, in his Return for the year 1890 (page 21, Title Lotteries), observed with reference to the decision of the learned Stipendiary Magistrate at Manchester [on summonses taken out by the Director against a newspaper proprietor, charging offences under the Lottery and Betting House Acts, dismissing those summonses], that it appeared probable that he (the Director), had been in error in the proceedings taken by him against the Defendant; for the learned magistrate having on the Director's application stated a case for the opinion of the Queen's Bench Division on the legal questions raised by the summonses, when that case came to be argued, the Court "could not see the possibility of any reasonable argument being presented calculated to show that the scheme was a lottery, or within the mischief of the Lottery Acts, and that although the other ground, that it was betting, was more suggestive, it certainly was not a bet, the place where the business was carried on could not be a betting house by reason of the business carried on there, the place was really a newspaper office."

Parliamentary
Paper, No. 114,
15 March 1892

The effect of this decision is to show that under the existing law the learned stipendiary was right and the Director wrong on all the questions stated in the case for the opinion of the Court, and the scheme so promoted by the newspaper, and worked by the system of "coupons" was not illegal, either under the Lottery or the Betting House Acts.

It followed, therefore, that the Director, who had previously warned other newspaper proprietors of the illegality of similar schemes, which warning had, in several instances, been acquiesced in, and the schemes abandoned, had not only on this, but on previous occasions, gone beyond his powers under a mistaken interpretation of the law with respect both to lotteries and betting houses.

The Director was naturally anxious not to fall again into such an error, and entertaining some doubt as to which of the Missing Word Competitions, which subsequently became so numerous, were illegal within the Lottery Acts, and which were not, and no notice having been taken in Parliament or elsewhere of his observations calling attention to the effect of the decision in Caminada v. Hulton, he abstained from again raising the question by taking action against any of the periodicals carrying on such competitions within his jurisdiction, in the expectation that some official notice would ultimately be taken of what appeared to him to be the insufficient powers of the existing law to deal with the mischiefs to which he had called the attention of Parliament in two successive Returns.

This expectation was at last realised, for in the month of October 1892 he received a letter from a Member of Parliament, calling his attention to the prevalence of these competitions, and suggesting that the Director's statutory powers were adequate to deal with the mischief.

The Director acted upon the suggestion of the learned Member, and applied for and obtained summonses at Bow Street Police Court, against the proprietor, publisher, editor, and printer of a periodical called "Pick-me-Up," whose place of business was within the Metropolitan Police District, in respect of two competitions then being carried on in that periodical, and by arrangement with the proprietor of "Pick-Me-Up," who offered every facility for obtaining a decision on the legal questions, these summonses were heard by the Chief Magistrate at Bow Street. Sir John Bridge, in giving his decision [which was afterwards approved of and applied by Mr. Justice Stirling to another competition ("Pearson's Weekly") of a similar character, but in which the conditions were not exactly the same], states the point clearly on which the question of lottery or no lottery depends, as follows:—

See "Times"
Newspaper of Wednesday, 14
December 1892, and
Appendix, p. 125.

Note (a).

"All the cases brought to my notice amount to this: Is this a scheme by which men risk money, and if successful gain money by chance? If so, it is undoubtedly a lottery. If the competition is decided by skill and judgment and not by chance, then it is not a lottery.

"With reference to the Missing Word Competition (a) a great deal is to be said for the contention as to the question of chance or judgment depending on the selection of a particular word. If competitors were asked to supply the word, and not a word it makes a difference. The Defendants do not pretend to say that they call for the selection of the most fitting word with which to complete the sentence. The selection of the word must be entirely a matter of chance. On that ground the case comes within the meaning of the Lottery Acts.

Note (a).

"The Art Competition (a) is slightly different, but it must be regarded as a whole. It may be said that judgment is required to place the pictures in proper order; but looking at the matter all round, it seems to me that the real object was to induce people to stake their money on chance, and that persons were induced to stake their money in that way. Therefore this case also must be considered a lottery. I must nominally convict the Defendants as rogues and vagabonds, but in view of all the circumstances I shall only fine them 1 s. in each case."

* * * * *

The Director, acting on the decision of Sir John Bridge in the "Pick-Me-Up" case, addressed warning letters to other periodicals whose offices were within the Metropolitan District, but Sir John Bridge's decision was acquiesced in by the proprietors in all cases, the only difficulty arising being with respect to competitions which had been commenced, and in respect of which monies had been received before that decision had been given.

In answer to an application made to him on behalf of the proprietors of one of these periodicals, the Director wrote a letter (not intended for publication) but which was published in most of the London newspapers, and which is now printed in the Appendix.

Appendix K.

The publication of this letter had, however, probably, a good effect; inasmuch as, so far as the Director is aware, the notification of the course of action he intended to pursue therein given, was acquiesced in, not only by the proprietor of the paper to whom it was addressed, but by other promoters of these competitions.

Another consequence of Sir John Bridge's decision in the case of "Pick-Me-Up" competitions was, that proceedings were taken by the City Solicitor with respect to Missing Word Competitions in "Pearson's Weekly," and other periodicals, whose offices were within the jurisdiction of the City of London, and those proceedings were still pending on 31st December 1892.

So far, therefore, as the decision in Caminada v. Hulton may have been considered to affect the question of illegal lotteries, it must now be taken that such decision does not affect those Missing Word Competitions which have been since, and notwithstanding such decision, held to be illegal lotteries. But on the other points raised—i.e., application of the Betting House Acts to the sale of coupons entitling the purchaser of a Sporting Newspaper, who invests 1 d.

for

(a) A Report of the proceedings at Bow Street, which includes descriptions of the two competitions in "Pick-Me-Up" taken from the "Times" of Wednesday, 14th December 1892, is printed at length in the Appendix.

(b) The proceedings instituted by the City Solicitor against the proprietors of "Pearson's Weekly" resulted in actions being brought in the Chancery Division of the High Court by successful and other competitors against the proprietors, and payment into Court of the monies received for the sale of coupons. These actions were consolidated and a special case stated in which one of the questions for the decision of the Court was as to the legality of the particular form of competition carried on by Messrs. Pearson. The learned Judge, Mr. Justice Stirling, in giving his decision referred with approbation to the decision of Sir John Bridge in the "Pick-Me-Up" competitions, and held that the competition in "Pearson's Weekly," although differing in some of its conditions from that of "Pick-Me-Up," was also an illegal lottery.

That portion of Mr. Justice Stirling's decision given since the previous portion of this Return was in type, which deals with the question of the illegality of the particular Missing Word Competition, is printed in the Appendix to this Return, p. 128.

for the newspaper including the coupon, to compete for money prizes of large amount for the more or less correct filling up lists of winning horses in forthcoming races, thereby becoming "betting agencies," with all the mischief of such agencies--such decision declares that such competitions may still be carried on without bringing the promoters within the penalties imposed by the Betting House Acts.

"In spite of the existing laws against betting, the trade thrives under new forms. Sporting circulars do the work of the betting offices; and they are both often the introduction, if not to downright crime, at any rate to slipshod notions about common honesty." (a)

Mr. Justice Day, in giving judgment in Caminada v. Hulton, expressed himself as follows: "I can only say that if this is an evil and demoralizing system it is not for the Judges to misconstrue Acts of Parliament relating to gambling or lotteries, but it is for the Legislature to deal with it."

The Director remains of opinion that the state of the law as laid down in Caminada v. Hulton, assuming that decision to be correct, is worthy of the consideration of the Legislature.

The dismissal of the summonses by the Magistrates having been upheld by the Queen's Bench Division in Caminada v. Hulton, "the power of the Director of Public Prosecutions to hinder Sporting Newspapers from becoming Betting Agencies has (not only) been sorely crippled," but has been held not to exist.

Among the prosecutions instituted during the last year the following particulars of the case of Reg. v. Gordon and Northbrook may be given under the present heading [though it more properly falls under that of "Frauds and Offences relating to Property"], and as pointing the distinction between honestly conducted "competitions," and mere "swindles."

Many, indeed most persons, who make applications to the Director after having invested their pennies or shillings in these Missing Word, or Missing Letter, or Puzzle Competitions, and who fail to obtain the prizes to which they believe their "correct answers" entitle them, are usually much too angry to make any distinction between those competitions which are honestly conducted and only illegal because they are practically lotteries, and those which are not lotteries at all, but nothing more nor less than swindles, where the advertisers either pay the prizes to confederates, or simply appropriate the monies received for the price of coupons, never answer letters, or submit to a judgment when any subscriber takes the trouble to pursue his remedy by civil process in the County Court.

The recent Missing Word Competitions which have caused so much public excitement owing to the large money prizes actually won and honestly paid by the promoters to the successful competitors have nothing in common with others of which that carried on by Messrs. Gordon and Northbrook is an example. The Defendants were tried at the Durham Assizes in November 1892, on charges of conspiracy to defraud several persons of small sums of money by means of false and fraudulent pretences, by offering prizes for competition for the correct answers to so-called puzzles. The defence set up was that these were bona fide guessing competitions and puzzles, and not within the prohibition of the Lottery Acts.

The learned Judge, in his summing up to the jury, explained that the charge against the Defendants was not that they had infringed the Lottery Acts, he (the Judge) did not know whether they had done so or not, but that the prizes promised in their advertisements were not given, in short that the whole transaction was a swindle.

The Jury found both the Defendants guilty, and evidence was then given that Gordon had previously been twice charged before Justices, and pleaded guilty to offences under the Lottery Act, and fined in two sums of 25*l.* each, with costs.

The

The Judge, in passing sentences of 12 calendar months with hard labour on each of the Defendants, observed that it was not a question of an offence under the Lottery Acts, but of obtaining small sums of money from large numbers of people in all classes of society by a gigantic system of fraud.

It is to be hoped that the result of this prosecution and the publicity given to it [in connection with that of Reg. v. Peters (Note), where the Defendant was convicted at the Northamptonshire Spring Assizes in March 1892 on a charge of perjury committed in connection with a system of "Prize Com-petitions" carried on by him, his defence that the prizes were fair and honestly paid being disbelieved by the jury], will not only have the effect of discouraging swindlers of like character, but will render persons who are credulous enough to risk their money on the faith of the honesty and bonâ fides of the promoters of some of these schemes, more cautious in the future.

BANKRUPTCY PROSECUTIONS.

The Director desires to refer to his observations which will be found at page 13 of his Return for 1889, at page 15 of his Return for 1890, and at page 30 of his Return for 1891, and that they may be considered as here repeated.

The costs of bankruptcy prosecutions, as appears from the Appropriation Accounts for the several financial years, have been as follows:—

1887-88	3,837
1888-89	3,663
1889-90	3,389
1890-91	2,314
1891-92	2,416

Those for 1892-93 cannot be given till the completion of the present financial year, on 31st March 1893.

This expenditure must, of course, depend principally, though not entirely (some prosecutions being exceptionally costly), on the number of prosecutions which the Director has, under the circumstances explained in his previous Returns, to institute and carry on.

During the year 1892, the period comprised in the present Return, the number of cases dealt with by the Director was - - - 55

The number of persons charged - - - - - 60

Of these the number of cases tried at Assizes (7) and at the Central Criminal Court (11) - - - - - 18

Ditto - - ditto - - at Quarter Sessions - - - 15

Number of persons who absconded, either before or after issue of process 5

Number of persons convicted - - - - - 32

Ditto ditto acquitted - - - - - 7

Ditto ditto dismissed by justices - - - - - 6

The sentences passed were as follows:—

One of 18 months, 2 of 12 months, 1 of 11 months, 1 of 10 months, 1 of 7 months, 4 of 6 months, 2 of 4 months, 3 of 3 months, 3 of 2 months, 3 of 1 month, 3 of 14 days, 4 to come up for judgment, and 1 of 1 day.

Since the date of the Director's Return for 1891, "The Ninth Report of the Board of Trade," under Section 131 of the "Bankruptcy Act, 1883," dated 9th August 1892, has been presented to Parliament.

Parliamentary Paper, No 114, 15 March 1892.

The Director desires to refer to Annex 1 of that Report, headed "The Report by the Inspector General in Bankruptcy on the general working of the Bankruptcy Acts, 1883 and 1890," pages 5-10, and under the sub-head "Administration of the Criminal Law of Bankruptcy," the Inspector General gives the particulars of certain cases in which the papers were submitted by the Board of Trade to the Director for him to prosecute, but the "Director did not consider that the circumstances were such as to enable him to take proceedings." The Inspector General called attention to these cases as instances of the defective state of the law, and of the expediency of amendments in the Debtors Act of 1869, and the Bankruptcy Act of 1883. The Director does not propose to discuss the particulars of these cases (Note a) which are instances in which differences of opinion have arisen between the officers of the Board of Trade and the Director, usually with respect to the evidence necessary to support criminal charges.

The Director is himself in general agreement with the views expressed by the Inspector General, who states his belief (page 5) that "there is no just ground for complaint as to the manner in which the Director's duties are performed," and concludes his observations under this head in the following terms, page 10 :—

"While making these observations in which I believe to be the public interest, I feel bound to acknowledge the valuable aid rendered by the Public Prosecutor's Department, and the great efficiency of its administration in the prosecution of fraudulent bankrupts, where orders to prosecute under the existing law have been made by the Bankruptcy Courts."

In the Appendix to this Report will be found the Memorandum of Mr. Cuffe—to whom the greater share of the credit thus given to the Department is properly due—which Memorandum explains clearly the present practice in the administration of the law by and between the two Departments.

That Memorandum, read in connection with the Inspector General's observations in the Ninth Report above referred to, will enable anyone to understand and appreciate the difficulties which have arisen, and will probably continue to arise, between the two Departments.

The

Note (a).—The case given as an example under "Pledging of goods not paid for, a frequent offence," gave occasion for a substantive complaint to the Home Secretary by a person interested in the prosecution against the Director, his staff, and the counsel engaged in the case, which complaint was supported by the Board of Trade. The Home Secretary referred the complaint to the Director who, in obedience to such reference, made a full report of all the circumstances, in his (the Director's) opinion, justifying in every respect the conduct of the prosecution.

The Report, with all the correspondence, has been made official, and is registered in the Home Office. No further reference was made to the Director after such Report.

Parliamentary
Paper 135,
18 April 1890.

Parliamentary
Paper 139,
12 March 1891.

The Director has before called attention to this subject in his Return for 1890, page 13, in discussing the case of Reg. v. Gould; and in the Return for 1891, in further observations on that case, page 15, where will also be found a short account of the different steps by which the conduct of this class of prosecutions came to be transferred to the Director's Department.

It may be sufficient here to give the following extract from page 15 of the Director's Return for 1890 :—

“ It is obvious that under the law as it now stands the Director has not
“ the same discretion with respect to the institution of a bankruptcy prose“ cution as he has under the statute and regulations with respect to other “ criminal prosecutions for fraud, and it is obvious that when the Official “ Receiver, who is an officer of the Board of Trade, applies to the Director
“ to institute a prosecution, or after a prosecution has been ordered by a “ Court sitting in Bankruptcy, it can only be under very exceptional “ circumstances that the Director would be justified in making any ob“ jection to instituting proceedings, or in carrying out a prosecution when “ so applied to or ordered.”

Appendix, p. 130.

Mr. Cuffe, at the end of his Memorandum, states the conclusion to which he has come, as follows :—

“ I think it would be an improvement to concentrate the responsibility
“ in one Department, either by the Bankruptcy Department having charge
“ of the prosecution, or by the Director of Public Prosecutions being given
“ a discretion as to instituting proceedings. I do not, however, suggest “ that there is any pressing necessity for the present procedure in respect
“ of bankruptcy offences to be altered, but I do not think there is any “ good reason for its being extended to other offences. In such cases it “ would be sufficient, in my judgment, that the attention of the Director
“ should be called to the evidence, in order that he should take such action
“ as might appear to him to be necessary.”

It is obvious that if the Director claims to exercise, in respect to bankruptcy prosecutions, the discretion conferred upon him by the Regulations with respect to all criminal prosecutions, his Department may in future, as it has already done in some instances, come into conflict with the Officials of the Board of Trade. In such case he can, of course, under those Regulations, apply to the Attorney General for directions, and so relieve himself of responsibility: though it cannot be expected that under the present state of the law differences of opinion (which must necessarily give occasion to some friction between the two Departments on each of which has been conferred to some extent an independent jurisdiction) will not occasionally arise.

The Director cannot add any further observations on the points so clearly put by Mr. Cuffe.

SUMMARY.

The comparison made in the last paragraph of the Return for 1891 for five years will now include the six completed years of 1887, 1888, 1889, 1890, 1891, and 1892, under the present regulations :—

Number of Cases.	1887.	1888.	1889.	1890.	1891.	1892.
In List A. - - -	425	385	350	453	471	413
In List B. . - -	548	596	503	667	591	841
Mint - - - -	315	202	147	134	132	190
TOTALS - - -	1,288	1,183	1,000	1,254	1,194	1,444

The largest increase is in List B., which is caused partly by applications relating to lotteries and missing word competitions, and partly by references, of which there were none in 1891, from the Board of Agriculture in cases of alleged breaches of the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Act; and an increase over the preceding year in Mint cases.

APPENDIX C.

“The Times,” Thursday, 14th April 1892.

THE need of a victim lies deep in human nature. Who or what shall be sacrificed is a secondary matter; a victim of some kind must be found when public affairs go wrong, and the victim most acceptable to many persons is the Director of Public Prosecutions. Sir John Maule the first holder of the office, was always in the wrong. His successor, Sir Augustus Stephenson, is not much more fortunate. Invariably he does too much or too little. Journals and Judges rebuke him, and his supposed short-comings supply subjects for many questions in the House of Commons. There is an ideal Public Prosecutor, who intervenes at the right moment in cases most needing his aid, who never shows too much zeal, who conducts a multitude of cases with complete success, and who does all this without making any serious calls on the Treasury. The actual official at Whitehall, it must be owned, falls far short of this standard. But a study of Sir Augustus Stephenson's last Report raises doubts as to the fairness of the persistent critics of his Department, and suggests that, no fantastic tests being applied, and all the difficulties in his way being considered, the work is done almost as well as could be expected. He feels sore and angry; that appears in almost every page of the report; and the feeling is excusable. Half of the criticisms are demands for a complete system of public prosecutions, such as exists in Scotland or France; demands made in ignorance or forgetfulness of the fact that the Director of Public Prosecutions has very limited powers, that he spends only about fifteen thousand a year, and that he is expected to initiate proceedings which would tax him if his resources and staff were ten times as large. The very title of his office does him injustice. It is not understood that the Director “directs” only a small number of prosecutions. No holder of the office, it is pretty plain, could fail to give offence. It is his business to say “No” to countless applications, and each refusal makes a hostile critic. To his account are set down faults and failures with which he has nothing to do. A prosecution is instituted for, say, fraudulent bankruptcy; it fails; the officials at Whitehall are blamed, not the jury, who were, perhaps, grossly partial or absurdly lenient; the witnesses, who may have been “squared,” or the person who originally set the law in motion, but who, for some reason, good or bad, no longer wishes to stir in the matter. The Department declines to intervene at the request of a shareholder with a grievance against directors, who, he believes, have deceived him. Again the Public Prosecutor is blamed, and not the less strongly because he did his duty, in refusing to become an instrument for the gratification of revenge or to allow public funds to be spent in repairing the blunders of private speculators. When “guessing competitions” were more common than they are, the Director wrote a harmless letter, in answer to correspondents who consulted him about the legality of such schemes. His well-meant, colourless remarks were denounced as “a Treasury” or “Government ukase” and described as “Prohibition of guessing competitions by the Government.”

The Director tells us that delay and difficulty were experienced in taking proceedings against Mr. Hurlbert, by refusal to allow impounded documents to leave the Court; that will not shield the Director from charges of remissness. Only the other day it came to light that he had prevented a salutary prosecution from being stifled. No one adverts to such facts. It is agreed that he is to be condemned, and any evidence to the contrary is to be hushed up or slurred over. The Department has imperfections, of which the chief, no doubt, is the inadequateness of the means at its disposal. But the Director's indignation at the persistent misconception of his powers and duties and his demand for an inquiry are reasonable. “Such an inquiry, whether it results in a condemnation or approval of the present system, or establishes the competence or incompetence of the Director and his Department to administer such system, must be for the benefit of the public and of the public service, whatever be its result. It cannot be in the interest of the public that incompetent officials should be retained in the service, nor is it, on the other hand, in the public interest that a system established by Parliament should be condemned without due inquiry, or that public servants should not be given an opportunity of answering, if they can, accusations, from whatever quarter they may come.”

Multifarious are the duties cast upon the Director and his small staff. Both in London and the country he conducts Mint prosecutions; and it will surprise most people to learn the extent to which, in spite of heavy sentences, coining is still practised. In a previous report, the conviction of the “King of the Coiners” was mentioned. It came to light that he, his wife, and one daughter had before served ten years' penal servitude, his two sons five years', and that a younger daughter had received for the same offence six months' and eighteen months' imprisonment. In his last report, the Director mentions the conviction of another daughter of the notorious “King of the Coiners,” and her being sentenced to seven years' penal servitude. The finished coiner is born, not made; this family history and other facts show it.

In the case of fraud and offences relating to property, the Director has the right to intervene, and most of the criticisms of his conduct are complaints that he intervenes too seldom and too timidly in regard to this class of offences. We have more than once suggested that the Director was here over-cautious. It is, however, only fair to note what may be said on the other side. The results of no prosecutions are more uncertain than those of promoters or others charged with having obtained the money of shareholders by false pretences or conspiracy. Most prospectuses of shady or "bogus" companies are prepared with the express purpose of keeping all concerned clear of the criminal law. Much deceptive matter the Courts condone as being no more than what is called "colour." An artist skilled in the preparation of such documents will, with such "colour," convey to the credulous and greedy an impression of limitless wealth known to be accessible. And yet this language, when scanned closely, will be found to state, not existing facts, but merely confident expectations. Much is promised; little is positively and precisely asserted as to the condition of the mine or business; and, even if an action for deceit or misrepresentation would lie, the clever rogue would slip through the wide meshes of an indictment.

We are less satisfied with the excuses given by the Director for rarely prosecuting for perjury. This crime is very common, and is apparently on the increase. To be sure, proceedings, when taken, are cumbrous and uncertain, and the long interval between the commission of the offence and the punishment tends to rob the law of its terrors. Perhaps the best plan would be to give power to proceed summarily before a magistrate for any "wilful false swearing" in a Court of Justice, and to inflict punishments which, if light, would fall upon the delinquent while his offence was fresh in people's recollections. But we cannot admit that the Director fully justifies his evident reluctance to embark in prosecutions for perjury. There seems to be growing up a notion in many minds that one may, in courts of law, say what one likes, provided it be on oath, that the form of an affidavit somehow absolves from all ordinary restraints, and that the penalties as to perjury are as obsolete as those against "forestalling" and "regrating." If more prosecutions for this offence were begun there would be many acquittals; with the present highly technical state of our law as to perjury, the accused has every advantage, and juries are often ready to strain a point in order to suffer him to escape. But there would be the satisfaction of knowing that such prosecutions, even when they ended in acquittals, would have a wholesome effect. It would be better to say this crime was no crime; better to strike out of the Statute Book the penalties against perjury, than to keep up the delusion that the offence is, in fact, attended with any serious danger. The next report of the Director will, it is to be hoped, chronicle greater activity in this field, and so satisfy, not his unreasonable critics, who will have it that he is always in the wrong, but those who are not insensible to the difficulties of his position and the limited extent of his powers.

The "Morning Post," Thursday, 7th April 1892.

THE Public Prosecutor shares with the Home Secretary the distinction of being the best-abused official in existence. On Foreign Treaties, on Colonial Tariffs, even on Military and Naval affairs, a good many persons are shy of expressing an opinion without some special knowledge of the subject. But though matters connected with the administration of justice are really not one whit less technical, everybody has a strong view as to whether this sentence is inadequate, or that murderer should be reprieved, or the other interesting criminal should be set free. In such instances it is the Home Secretary who comes in for the petition, the remonstrance, or the warning; but there are other classes of cases as to which his Department is not concerned. In a large proportion of the more serious crimes committed in this country it becomes the duty of the Public Prosecutor to consider whether he shall not undertake the conduct of the proceedings, and he is constantly being blamed for not prosecuting the authors of some swindle, or for failing to take sufficiently prompt steps for preventing the escape of some supposed criminal.

Sir A. K. Stephenson's Report for 1891, which has just been issued, is to a considerable extent a defence against such charges. It must be owned that in most, if not all, of the instances which he gives he makes out a very strong case in favour of the course which he has adopted, and for which he has been censured by particular organs of the press, and once or twice by particular Judges. For example, in a case of embezzlement tried at the Warwickshire Spring Assizes, he was blamed by Mr. Justice Wills for a miscarriage of justice due to the presumed absence of a paper, though it had been actually included in counsel's brief, and special attention had been called to it, and, as the Judge afterwards took express occasion to state, the Director and his office were in no degree to blame in the matter. In another trial the Lord Chief Justice made some severe remarks on the Public Prosecutor for having taken proceeding against a supposed poisoner, and his Lordship actually disallowed the costs, on the ground that "to pay the expenses out of the taxation of the country was "ridiculous nonsense." But Sir A. K. Stephenson clearly shows that, although the woman whose murder was believed to have been attempted, declared at the trial that she did not think the attempt was serious, and the case was consequently stopped, there were three other witnesses, who were not heard, whose depositions certainly furnished ample prima facie grounds for the prosecution, and when the facts were reported to the Home Secretary and the Attorney-General they came to the conclusion that the action both of the committing magistrate and of the Director of Prosecutions was amply justified.

Again, in the cause célèbre of "Evelyn v. Hurlbert," in which the Judge pointed out that perjury must have been committed by one side or the other, it was impossible to take proceedings until after the hearing of the plaintiff's appeal, and meantime Mr. Hurlbert had gone to America. Delays arose in procuring the necessary evidence to secure extradition, and when a warrant was secured at Bow-street the fact leaked out. It was nearly a week afterwards that a warrant for Mr. Hurlbert's arrest was placed in the hands of the United States Marshal, and meantime the defendant had betaken himself outside the jurisdiction of the American Courts.

On the still more difficult question of deciding what prosecutions should be undertaken in the case of frauds connected with the promotion of companies, Sir A. K. Stephenson quotes an opinion of Mr. Matthews, to the effect that large sums ought not to be spent merely in avenging the people who have been attracted by rogues with promises of huge profits, and who, when they find themselves swindled, "Come shrieking to the Director of Public Prosecutions to get their money back." We are told that in the case of most of the bogus companies the prospectuses are carefully framed, so as to keep the promoters clear of the criminal law, that they are chary of facts and very liberal in promises; and that there is very rarely such evidence of misrepresentation as would be sufficient to secure a conviction in a criminal case.

Frauds connected with promotion of companies.

Again, the question of prosecutions for perjury is by no means so simple as is generally supposed. Sir Augustus Stephenson remarks that it is a matter of general notoriety, and one to which public attention is often directed, that contradictory evidence, which must almost always be wilful false swearing, is constantly given in suits for the dissolution of marriage in the Divorce Court. The Judge or Jury has to come to a decision on the balance of probabilities, and may believe one set of witnesses and disbelieve the other, with the result that judgment is given accordingly. But if a criminal prosecution for perjury be instituted it is very probable that a conviction may not follow, since in practice it is found that much stronger evidence is required to convict a prisoner than to secure a divorce, to say nothing of the fact that some juries are inclined to treat perjury as a necessary and almost justifiable incident of matrimonial causes. Thus it is very seldom that prosecutions can in such cases be undertaken with any prospect of a conviction, unless in the rare instances in which independent evidence of a conclusive character is procurable. And it is pointed out that in cases of a different character it by no means follows, even after wilful false swearing, that a prosecution for perjury of a witness who may have been disbelieved by the jury in the original trial will result in his conviction in another trial before another jury, where the onus of proof is upon the prosecutor. The Director has therefore had to lay down the principle that no such proceedings ought to be taken unless the fact that the person implicated has sworn falsely—and this on a point material to the issue—can be proved by corroborative evidence strong enough to afford a reasonable presumption that a jury will convict for perjury.

Perjury and wilful false swearing in the Divorce Court. Reg. v. Taplen and Owen. Return for 1891, pp. 25, 26.

Now and then, however, there are flagrant cases, in which informers or police officers are found ready to swear away the liberty of innocent men, and here there must be no halting on the part of the Public Prosecutor. The Report mentions one such case, in which four men were convicted of robbery, and three of them were sentenced to penal servitude, on the evidence of one Feeley, as to whom the convicts made some very damaging statements to Sir Augustus Stephenson. Inquiries were made through detectives, and the upshot was that he preferred a charge of perjury against Feeley, but after a long hearing and the examination of numerous witnesses it was dismissed by the magistrate. Undeterred by this failure, the Public Prosecutor proceeded by indictment against Feeley in the Central Criminal Court, when, after a three days' trial, he was convicted and sentenced to five years' penal servitude, and we presume the unfortunate men who had been condemned on his testimony received the Queen's pardon.

Perjury in a criminal prosecution. Reg. v. Feeley. Owen. Return for 1891, p. 24, note.

With such evils as may result from "lotteries, prize drawings, raffles, guessing, and word competitions, and sporting handicaps," the Director confesses himself unable to cope effectually, though he points out that in many instances measures have been taken for the suppression of such schemes, and he thinks that their promoters have consequently become discouraged. But he remarks that as long as there are men and women of tolerable education who are sanguine or foolish enough to believe that the correct counting of the number of times the letter "a" occurs in the Book of Genesis, and a payment of 1s. 7d. will entitle them to a prize of 50l., and who think themselves defrauded if they receive only an assurance that there were so many successful competitors that their share of the 50l. amounted to only a few pence apiece, so long will such competitions be advertised and will attract the money of the foolish. That a good deal has been done to put down public lotteries, as well as public gaming-houses, is evident from this and previous Reports, and it is no doubt useful to limit the opportunities for gambling so that they shall be to some extent out of the reach of the younger and poorer part of the population. The whole subject is, of course, full of anomalies, and there are persons who refuse to see much difference in point of morality between investment in a State lottery, such as those of the last century, and speculation for the rise in "Berthas" or "Jumpers." On the whole, however, Sir Augustus Stephenson's Report affords convincing proof that he discharges a very difficult function with much judgment and discretion.

Reg. v. Neal and Kemp.

"The Times," Friday, 21st October 1892.

(Before the Common Serjeant.)

William Charles Neal, 31, and William Kemp, 48, were indicted for stealing and receiving watches to the value of 4,200 l., the property of Mr. Henry Williamson, Manufacturing Jeweller, Farringdon-road.

The Common Serjeant said he was satisfied that Kemp was a regular receiver of stolen goods, and a most dangerous man. He should sentence him to ten years' penal servitude. Neal he sentenced to seven years' penal servitude.

Mr. Purcell asked that Kemp should be made to pay the costs of the prosecution out of the money found upon him.

The Common Serjeant said there had been great neglect in obtaining legal assistance at all, and he had been put to a great deal of trouble in the matter of identifying the property, a duty which should have been undertaken by the prosecution. He should not make the order requested.

Mr. Purcell.] Application was made to the Public Prosecutor, but he refused legal assistance.

The Common Serjeant.] A case of this kind is exactly the kind of case which the Public Prosecutor should take up.

An Inspector of Police said the Public Prosecutor based his refusal only on the ground that the prosecutors were well-to-do, and quite able to pay their own costs.

The Common Serjeant.] In that I think the Public Prosecutor was quite right.

"The Times," 24th October 1892.

The Duties of the Public Prosecutor.

To the Editor of "The Times."

Sir,

I find this in your Law Report of to-day:—

"Mr. Purcell.] Application was made to the Public Prosecutor, but he refused legal assistance.

"The Common Serjeant.] A case of this kind is exactly the kind of case which the Public Prosecutor should take up.

"An Inspector of Police said the Public Prosecutor based his refusal only on the ground that the prosecutors were well-to-do, and quite able to pay their own costs.

"The Common Serjeant.] In that I think the Public Prosecutor was quite right."

I beg, Sir, to protest against this version of the Public Prosecutor's duty, and I can give an example of how it works. A few months since my firm, along with three other firms, was victimised by a gang of sharpers acting in concert. After getting the evidence together I consulted my solicitor, who told me that we had better write the whole thing off, as the prosecution might run into 200 l. or 300 l. before it was over. I then suggested applying to the Treasury on the evidence I had collected, when my solicitor said the Public Prosecutor would never help a firm like mine, but was only intended to intervene when the poverty of the injured prevented their getting legal assistance. So I dropped the matter at once, and the gang of thieves are, I believe, continuing to prosper. Why, having lost 100 l. I should be expected, pro bono publico, to spend 300 l. more, with no hope of return, and with enormous personal trouble and discomfort, I cannot say. This is, indeed one law for the rich and another for the poor in quite a new sense, and makes the payment of rates and taxes even less agreeable than ever, and it puts crime on a wrong footing as an injury against an individual, instead of an offence against the State.

Yours,
Mercator.

October 21.

The "Globe," 24th October 1892.

(The Public Prosecutor.)

A LETTER which appeared this morning with the signature of "Mercator" cannot be said to throw more light, or rather more darkness, on the interestingly mysterious office of the Public Prosecutor. It is generally surmised, however vaguely, that the office was created chiefly in order that justice should not miscarry through the failure of private action. Such failure may obviously be the result of a great many causes, of which indolence, unwillingness to punish, compromise with the criminal, a natural distaste for the witness-box, want of time or want of money are but a few. According to "Mercator's" experience, however, supported by an extract from the report of a recent case before the Common Serjeant; it would seem that the Public Prosecutor recognises only the injured party's want of money as a reason for intervening, that is to say, he regards himself, not as a guardian of public justice and of society, but as a sort of advocatus pauperis. In the reported case the Common Serjeant approved the Public Prosecutor's refusal to take it up on the ground that the prosecutors were well to do and able to pay their own costs in "Mercator's" experience, his and some other firms which had been victimised were advised that the Treasury would never help anybody who, in their opinion, could afford to pay 200 l. or 300 l. It would not be easy to find anybody who, in his own opinion, can afford to throw away that sum as a matter of public duty. It follows, therefore, that one who wrongs a poor man will have the Government and the taxes arrayed against him, while he who wrongs a rich man has only his victim to deal with, even though the offence in the latter case may happen to be infinitely more dangerous to society than the former. This, as "Mercator" points out, is a new reading of "One law for the rich and another for the poor." It is right that offences against the poor should be punished, but upon the same grounds as those against the rich, namely, as crimes against the State with which the Crown is concerned, without regard to anyone but the criminal.

"Manchester Examiner," 25th October 1892.

SOME matters are ordered better in Scotland than in England, and the prosecution of criminals is one. North of the Tweed, this duty is wholly entrusted to the public officials known as procurator fiscal; in our own country it is very largely left to private citizens. Thus in Scotland, a man who has been robbed or swindled gives information to the procurator fiscal, and he takes the necessary steps for bringing the offender to justice, whilst in England the trouble and expense of the proceedings have as often as not to be borne by the injured individual. It is true that we have a public prosecutor, but he appears to be known rather for what he omits to do than for what he does. Complaints about his apparent apathy are heard more frequently than commendation of his activity. A letter bearing the signature "Mercator," which was published yesterday, belongs to the former category.

APPENDIX E.

Reg. v. Langburn.

Market-place, Guisbrough,
15 February 1892.

Sir,

As guardian of the poor for this township, I feel it my duty to enclose statement respecting a poor old man named John Charlton, a labourer, 70 years of age, who is now imprisoned in Her Majesty's Prison at Northallerton, under an Order of the Judge of the County Court of Yorkshire holden at Guisbrough and Stokesley.

The statement shows that Charlton for four weeks previous to the Order of Commitment being granted, and for 11 weeks after, was in receipt of parochial relief, and that he was actually arrested and taken to prison as he left the relieving officer after receiving his weekly allowance.

The case has excited great indignation in the neighbourhood, and it is earnestly hoped that you will, on verifying the statements, give immediate instructions for Charlton's release, and for the taking of such proceedings as you may think proper.

I am, &c.

(signed) J. E. W.

To the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Home Department.

The following is an EXTRACT from the NOTICES of MOTION and ORDERS of the DAY from the VOTES and PROCEEDINGS of the HOUSE of COMMONS, No. 14, 26th February 1892.

Monday, 29th February 1892.

Mr. Labouchere.] To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he is aware that John Charlton, of Lingdale, Yorkshire, labourer, aged 70, was sued for a debt of a little above 5 l., and that an Order was obtained for payment of 5 s. per week; that these payments were regularly made until more than 5 l. had been paid in reduction of the debt; that being out of work in the latter part of last year, he was unable to keep up the weekly payments, and that a judgment summons for two instalments was taken out, returnable at Guisborough on 20th November 1891; that on that day Charlton attended at Guisborough to plead his inability to pay owing to the fact that he was out of work, and was then, and had been since the 20th of October previous, in the receipt of parochial relief; and that he states that he went away on the assurance of the plaintiff's agent that the case would be withdrawn; that on the case being called the plaintiff's agent said that Charlton had told him that he had only had two weeks' relief, and that on this statement a committal order was granted; that the relieving officer has certified that Charlton was in receipt of relief from 20th October 1891 until 9th February 1892; and that on the 9th of February he was arrested by the county court bailiff as he came away from the relieving officer after receiving his weekly allowance and conveyed to prison, where he now is.

And whether in view of the fact that Charlton's only means were those which he received as parochial relief, and that his wife cannot earn money for him, being 65 years old, and suffering from disease of the heart and an abscess, he will see that the man is at once released.

Extract from "Times" of 1st March.

The case of John Charlton.

Mr. Labouchere, who had given notice of a question in reference to this case said that the man had been released, and therefore he would only ask the Secretary for the Home Department whether he intended to institute an inquiry as to whether the individual in question had been improperly imprisoned owing to perjured evidence.

Mr. Matthews.] I can only say that I have no power to interfere in the matter.

"The Leeds Mercury," 25th May 1892.

Yorkshire Spring Assizes.

Before Mr. Justice Charles.

Charge to the Grand Jury.

* * * * *

There was a serious charge of perjury against a man named Henry Langburn. He had acted for a plaintiff in a county court case in a case against an old man. He told the county court judge that this old man was not in receipt of parish relief, and that he had means to pay a certain debt. It was alleged that he knew he was speaking falsely. On the depositions there seemed to be a case against him. His Lordship briefly referred to the other cases and dismissed the Grand Jury to their duties.

The "Leeds Mercury," Monday, 30th May 1892.

Leeds Town Hall, Saturday.

Before Mr. Justice Charles.

Alleged Perjury at Guisborough. The Case collapses.

HENRY LANGBURN, who surrendered to his bail, was indicted for having "wilfully and corruptly given false evidence in his examination upon oath, before Edmund Robert Turner, the Judge

" Judge of the County Court of Yorkshire, holden at Stokesley and Guisborough, in a certain Cause " between D. Baker and Sons and John Charlton, on the 20th November 1891, at Guisborough." Mr. Mellor and Mr. Edmondson were for the Prosecution; Mr. Waddy, Q.C. and Mr. Luck, defended.

His Lordship, addressing the Jury, said, the case had come to an end. It was perfectly clear from the evidence of the witness who had just left the box, that the Defendant did not commit perjury, but that he stated in substance what was true. The person who misled the County Court Judge was not the Defendant at all, it was either Clarkson or the Judgment Debtor himself. Mr. Mellor had very properly withdrawn from the case, and they would therefore find Langburn not guilty.

The Jury then formally returned a verdict of " Not Guilty," and the Defendant was at once discharged.

His Lordship—I think it right to say—I should be wanting in what is due to the Defendant if I refrained from saying it—that if I had the power I should grant costs to the Defendant. The Prosecution is not one which should, in my opinion, have been brought. It has totally collapsed.

" Not Guilty."

APPENDIX F.

Reg. v. Parsons and May.

" Northampton Daily Chronicle," 28th June 1892.

Before the Lord Chief Justice of England.

The Northamptonshire Assizes.

His Lordship in charging the Grand Jury Referring to the charge of conspiracy against Parsons and May, reminded them that the criminal courts of the country should not be turned to a mode of enforcing civil debts. They must consider whether there was a real false pretence on the part of Parsons, or a real conspiracy on the part of both, or whether it was merely an attempt to obtain money which there was a reasonable expectation of paying within a reasonable time.

His Lordship dismissed the Grand Jury to their duties at 11.40.

" Northampton Daily Chronicle," Thursday, 30th June 1892.

The alleged Conspiracy to defraud Mr. L. G. Moore.

Before Lord Coleridge, L.C.J.

JAMES RICHARD PARSONS (39) of no occupation, and William May (40) auctioneer, were indicted for conspiring to cheat and defraud Mr. L. G. Moore of the sum of 48 l. 5 s. 0 d., between the 1st January and the 20th February, for conspiring to cheat and defraud divers persons of their respective monies between the same dates, and also for obtaining the said sum of 48 l. 5 s. 0 d. from Mr. Moore by false pretences with intent to defraud. Parsons was also further separately indicted for obtaining the money by false pretences from Mr. Moore. Mr. Cracroft, with Mr. Disney, appeared for the prosecution, instructed by Mr. T. Ashdowne, acting for the Treasury; and the prisoners were undefended. The case was opened by Mr. Cracroft, and during his remarks his Lordship intervened and said he did not think the indictment was rightly drawn. They could not have a conspiracy to defraud divers other persons, which might mean all mankind, as any man of doubtful antecedents might be indicted for conspiracy under those circumstances. His Lordship in the end said he would not stop the case on the point, but if the jury found the prisoners guilty on that particular count he should not pass sentence without first consulting his brother judges on the matter. As to the other counts in the indictment he said nothing.

During the examination of the last witness his Lordship spoke of what he termed the amount of prejudice introduced into the case by the prosecution. He said, " Who is responsible for this " prosecution?" Mr. Cracroft: I am instructed by the Treasury, my Lord. His Lordship: Did Sir Augustus Stephenson give you instructions? Mr. Cracroft: I was instructed through an agent. I presume the case has gone through in the ordinary form. His Lordship: That confirms every experience I have yet had of Treasury prosecutions. The prisoner May: It is something fearful, my Lord. His Lordship: Never mind that, Sir; when you fill my situation you may perhaps have the right to say so.

The case for the prosecution having been closed, His Lordship asked the jury whether they thought there was any case against the prisoners, and if they wished it to go on. They had not paid their debts it was true, but that was another matter. It seemed to him that one of the counts was bad in law. He saw no evidence of what was called false pretences, but there might be evidence of their possibly having joined together to get the 48 l. 5 s. 0 d. from Mr. Moore. A great deal, however, might be said against that, as they were told Parsons had an interest in some estate, and therefore was not in the position of a person without means who attempted to get money. He again asked them if they wished the case to proceed. After some little consideration the Foreman of the Jury said they thought the prisoners did conspire to cheat Mr. Moore out of the money, and they desired the case should proceed.

The Jury retired, and returned with a verdict of guilty on the second count. His Lordship, taking into account the prisoners had been in prison some considerable time, sentenced each of them to three months' imprisonment with hard labour.

“Northampton Daily Reporter,” 28th June 1892.

Prejudicing the Case.

His Lordship, who had previously complained during Jones' evidence, again referred to the amount of prejudice introduced by the Prosecution, and inquired who was responsible for the Prosecution. Mr. Cracroft replied that he had been instructed by the Treasury through an agent. He was first engaged by the Director of Public Prosecutions. He presumed the case had been taken up in the ordinary form. His Lordship—I can only say it confirms every experience I have yet had of Treasury Prosecutions. May; it is something fearful, my Lord (laughter). At the conclusion of Jones' evidence, the learned Judge asked the Jury if they wished the case to go on, and after consideration the foreman said they thought the prisoners did come down and conspire to do Mr. Moore out of money.

His Lordship, in summing up, said he was of opinion that the first and third counts were counts upon which they could not safely proceed, but upon the second count he thought there was a strong case for them to consider. His Lordship before concluding, said the Treasury ought really to have known better than put forward evidence in such a case; certainly not receivable in the opinion of his Lordship, but brought simply and solely for the purpose of prejudicing the minds of the Jury.

The Jury retired, and after a short absence, returned with a verdict of guilty against both of the prisoners on the second count. Mr. Cracroft said he did not propose to go on with the other indictment charging Parsons with false pretences. His Lordship, taking into consideration the fact that they had already been in prison, sentenced them to three months hard labour each.

HOUSE of LORDS, Friday, 27th May.

"Evelyn v. Hurlbert."

Lord Coleridge had the following notice on the paper. "To call attention to the correspondence between the Director of Public Prosecutions and the Associates' Department of the High Court of Justice with regard to certain documents impounded by order of the Court in the trial of an action entitled 'Evelyn v. Hurlbert'; and to move that a copy of Rule 33A in Part II. of the Rules of the Supreme Court be laid on the table of the House."

The Lord Chancellor explained that the Noble Lord proposed to postpone the motion until the first Monday after the Whitsuntide Recess.

From "The Times," Tuesday, 21st June 1892.

PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS, Monday, 20th June.

"Evelyn v. Hurlbert."

Lord Coleridge called attention to the correspondence between the Director of Public Prosecutions and the Associates' Department of the High Court of Justice with regard to certain documents impounded by order of the Court in the trial of the action "Evelyn v. Hurlbert," and moved that a copy of Rule 33A. in Part II. of the Rules of the Supreme Court be laid on the Table of the House. His Lordship said that when the Courts sat at Westminster there was no room available for keeping documents impounded by order of the judges, but when the Courts were moved to the Strand, a strong room was provided in which such documents could be kept. There was, however, no authority to take control of them, and any of the parties could obtain access to them on an application to the Associate who had no authority to refuse such application. That was the state of things in 1891. In the month of April of that year, from the 13th to the 20th, the case of "Evelyn v. Hurlbert" was before Mr. Justice Cave. The action was for breach of promise of marriage, and in the course of the case a number of letters were incidentally produced. The Defendant put in two letters signed "Wilfred Murray," addressed to Mr. Hurlbert. On the application of the Attorney-General, the Judge ordered all these documents to be impounded from the 20th of April. The Attorney-General was the leading Counsel for the Defendant, but he did not make any complaint against him for that, and many years ago, when he was a Member of the House of Commons, he himself resisted a motion which sought to prevent the Law Officers of the Crown from taking private practice. He thought now, as then, that to restrain the Law Officers of the Crown from private practice would be very mischievous, although, of course, now and then, it must complicate matters when one of the Law Officers acted for a private person on one side or the other, and afterwards had to take some step as representing the Crown, for or against the person for whom he had previously appeared as Counsel. Mr. Justice Cave had allowed Counsel for the Plaintiff and Defendant to have access to the documents, but when a further application for access to these documents was made the matter was mentioned to him. He did not know Mr. Hurlbert, and never saw him. Whether he was entitled to the description an illustrious American gave of him that he was a man of fathomless and immeasurable turpitude, or whether he was entitled to the eulogiums passed upon him and to the respect, admiration, and intimacy granted to him by persons of very high rank, he neither knew nor cared, but it was obvious that if the Defendant was a person capable of producing these filthy letters, and he had himself looked at only three of them, it was certain that he would spare no pains, and would spend any amount of money to make himself the possessor of these documents, the exact number of which he forgot, but he believed there were over 200 letters.

Under these circumstances it seemed to him that it would not be right that the officer in charge of such documents should have any authority of his own over them as under the old rule, but that there should be some distinct authority to apply to in respect of documents impounded by order of the Court. It was with this object that the rule which had caused so much discussion was passed. The noble and learned Lord then referred to the correspondence which had passed between Sir A. Stephenson and the Associate of the Queen's Bench Division as to the inspection of documents. Inquiry was made whether the documents were wanted for a public purpose, and it was stated that any prosecution of the Plaintiff was a thing that the learned Judges who tried the case were not disposed to recognise. Every permission was given for the inspection and the copying of documents on August 24th, but nothing was done until November 27th. Then came the information from New York that Hurlbert had disappeared, and nothing more was done. The rule did not allow any motion in open Court so long as the documents remained in the custody of the Court. Under the new rule documents would be handed over to the Attorney or Solicitor-General if they were asked for, and the use that might be made of them was a thing with which, of course, the Judges had nothing to do. He moved his motion merely for the purpose of making these remarks.

Lord Herschell was glad that the noble Lord had stated that a new rule had been made which would render it possible that impounded documents would be delivered, on the application of the Attorney-General or Solicitor-General, in order that he might consider whether there ought to be a prosecution. The new rule would for the future remove all difficulty, and no object would be served in discussing the matter further.

The Lord Chancellor said that he could answer for the members of the Rule Committee that, in framing the rule in question, it never occurred to any one of them that there was any probability of a difference arising between one of Her Majesty's Judges and those responsible for public prosecutions. The moment it was seen that the rule could be so interpreted, or so misunderstood, as to place any bar in the way of a public prosecution, the Rule Committee came to the conclusion that it ought to be amended at once, and they passed a resolution in accordance with the desire of the noble and learned Lord who had just sat down.

The motion was then by leave withdrawn.

From "The Echo," Thursday, 19th May 1892.

The perusal of the correspondence between the Public Prosecutor and Master Erle, of the Royal Courts of Justice, recalls to us the fact that on more than one occasion we have complained of the apparent torpidity of Sir Augustus Stephenson's predecessor; we frankly confess, after reading these wonderful letters, that we wonder how a Public Prosecutor is able to do any effective work at all. . . . On the 20th of June the Queen's Bench Divisional Court impounded the documents in the well-known Hurlbert case; on the 23rd of June the Director of Public Prosecutions applied to inspect these documents. Master Erle declined to accede to this demand, taking his stand upon a recent rule of the Court. Three days after, when the application was renewed, Master Erle intimated that, in the opinion of the Judges, they ought not to give facilities for the prosecution of the Plaintiff; it apparently never dawned upon Master Erle or the two judges that a prosecution should be instituted against the Defendant Mr. Hurlbert. By July the 8th Master Erle had gone so far as to allow an inspection of the documents; but even then he refused to allow the Public Prosecutor to take copies, and it was not till the 19th August that Lord Coleridge and Mr. Justice Cave authorised an expert, nominated by the Solicitor-General, to inspect the documents. From the 24th of August to the 27th of November there is a big break in the correspondence, presumably because of that sacred season the Long Vacation. Then Sir John Bridge granted a warrant for Hurlbert's arrest, but, incredible to say, even as late as the 4th of December the two Judges thought that the time had not arrived for taking copies of the documents. On the 27th of November the warrant was issued; an evening paper got hold of the fact, and by publishing it gave Hurlbert timely warning to escape, and he left New York on the 28th to avoid arrest. We heartily sympathise with the dignified complaint with which Sir A. Stephenson closes the correspondence:—"I would respectfully observe that it might have been assumed, in the first instance, in my favour, and it must certainly be clear now, that I have not, and could never have had, any 'reasons' for asking for an inspection and permission to take copies other than for the purpose of assisting me in my inquiries, or for using such documents as evidence in support of a criminal prosecution to be instituted by me in my official capacity as Director of Public Prosecutions."

Reg. v. Margaret Smith and others.

LETTER from Director to Registrar of Chancery Division.

Re J. C. Park's Estate.

Claim of Margaret J. Smith.

Sir,

Treasury, Whitehall, S.W., 5 April 1892.

As Director of Public Prosecutions, I am about to prefer a charge against Margaret J. Smith and four other persons, of forgery and conspiracy, alleged to have been committed by them in connection with the above claim.

I forward Counsel's brief, in opposition to the claim, for reference, with an indorsement thereon, from which it appears that "all documents" in Court at the hearing were to be "impounded."

I shall be obliged if you will apply for, and obtain, the necessary permission for the inspection by me of the documents now in the custody of the Court, in order that I may ascertain whether

A deed of 23rd March 1886, purporting to be signed by the testator Parks,—

A document, marked M. J. S. 2, of 18th October 1885, and—

A document, marked J. P. 4, of 29th November 1886, are among such documents now in the custody of the Court.

I am, &c.

The Registrar,
Chancery Registrar's Office,
Royal Courts of Justice.

(signed) A. K. Stephenson,
Director of Public Prosecutions.

I shall be obliged for return of Mr. Bardewell's brief with your answer.—A. K. S.

LETTER from Registrar of Chancery Division to Director.

Re J. C. Park's Estate. Cole v. Park.Claim of Margaret J. Smith.

Sir,

Chancery Registrar's Office,
Royal Courts of Justice, 7 April 1892.

IN answer to your letter of the 5th April, I find the impounded documents you require were deposited in Court on the 6th June 1889, pursuant to an Order of the 17th May 1889, and may be found in the Central Office, Room 85, but before they can be inspected a written order, in accordance with Rule 33a of Order 42 of the Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883, must be signed by the Lord Chancellor and by the Judge who directed the documents to be impounded.

If you will kindly forward me a written order in such form as will be sufficient for your purpose, I will obtain the signatures of the Lord Chancellor and of Mr. Justice Chitty, the senior Judge of the Chancery Division; Mr. Justice Romer, who made the Order on the 5th June 1891, being absent from illness.

Sir A. K. Stephenson, K.C.B., Q.C.,
&c. &c. &c.

I am, &c.
(signed) N. Ward,
Senior Registrar.

COPY ORDER to inspect and take copies.

Re J. C. Park's Estate. Cole v. Park.Claim of Margaret J. Smith.

Let Mr. Angus Scott Lewis, Barrister-at-Law, and Assistant in the Department for Public Prosecutions, and Mr. Thomas Henry Gurrin, of 59, Holborn Viaduct, an Expert in handwriting, inspect all the documents deposited in Court on the 6th June 1889, pursuant to an Order of the 17th May 1889, and impounded by Mr. Justice Romer by Order of the 5th June 1891, and to take copies of such of them as may appear to be material for the purposes of the charge about to be preferred by Sir Augustus Keppel Stephenson, Q.C., Director of Public Prosecutions, against the above-named Margaret J. Smith, and four other persons of forgery and conspiracy, alleged to have been committed by them in connection with the above claim.

Dated the 12th day of April 1892.

(signed) Halsbury, C.
Joseph W. Chitty, J.

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S Answer to Director's request to him to apply for custody of impounded documents.

I am prepared to request that the documents impounded be delivered out to me, and my Official Clerk shall attend at any time and place required by the Director with the documents. I think, if possible, a list of the documents should be annexed to my request, and a receipt given on my behalf to a corresponding list.

Report of Proceedings at Bow-street Police Court. Charge of Forgery.

AT Bow-street, yesterday afternoon, Margaret Josephine Smith, teacher, 28, of 99 Ledbury-road, Bayswater, John Paul, clerk, Hayling Island, Thomas Allistone, gardener, Oak Cottage, Walton-on-the Hill, William Michlethwaite, solicitor's clerk, 50, Ashton-street, Gray's Inn-road, and Sarah Ingram, cook, Worpie-road, Wimbledon, were charged with forging and uttering certain documents.

Sir

Sir A. K. Stephenson, the Public Prosecutor, occupied a seat on the bench.

Mr. Horace Avory, instructed by Mr. Frayling of the Treasury, prosecuted; the prisoners were defended by Mr. Greenwood.

Mr. Avory opened the case at great length. He stated that the prisoners were charged with forging and uttering a deed dated March 23rd 1886, purporting to be executed by Mr. John Cornelius Park, deceased, who formerly resided at Auckland House, Upper Teddington. Ingram and Allistone were also charged with forging Mr. Park's signature to a letter which purported to be addressed to his solicitors. The prisoners were further charged with conspiring to obtain 20,000 £ from Mr. Park's executors; and with attempting to pervert the course of justice. The charge was a remarkable one, on account of the extreme cunning and artful devices of the prisoner Smith. The principal document alleged to have been forged purported to be an agreement between Smith and the late Mr. Park. It set forth that he wished his son to marry the prisoner Margaret Josephine Smith, thinking she would make him a suitable wife. Mr. Park, sen., undertook, if the marriage should be celebrated, to settle 30,000 £ upon Smith for her own separate use and enjoyment, and directed his executors, if the son refused to marry her, to pay her 20,000 £. When Mr. Park died Smith claimed the 20,000 £, the son saying he knew nothing about her or his father's alleged intentions with regard to the marriage. Thereupon Smith brought an action against the executors. The trial extended over 11 days before Mr. Justice Romer, who, in dismissing the claim, said it had been supported by fictitious documents, and an amount of false swearing which had astonished him, in spite of all his experience of litigation. He said he was satisfied that the story had been concocted by Smith, assisted by Paul, and in a lesser degree by Allistone, Octavius Davis, and Ingram. The man Davis was the only one concerned who was not now before the Court. That decision was given in May of last year, and he wished to explain how the delay in instituting this prosecution had arisen. Smith appealed against Mr. Justice Romer's decision, and it was only about six months ago that that appeal was dismissed. The Rule of Court recently passed, preventing the Public Prosecutor from having access to the impounded documents, caused further delay, as it was necessary to apply to the Attorney General to produce them.

Sir John Bridge said the object of impounding documents was that they should be used, if necessary, by the Director of Public Prosecutions, and it seemed to him that any further process led to an unnecessary waste of time.

Mr. Avory proceeded to point out that the document upon which Smith's claim was based purported to be signed by Mr. Park and witnessed by the other prisoners.

In conclusion, the learned Counsel said he should like respectfully to say that he entirely agreed with the observation of Mr. Justice Romer, in dismissing her claim, that Margaret Josephine Smith, Paul, and Micklethwaite appeared to be the chief culprits in this extraordinary case. The other two prisoners appeared only to have taken a minor part in the frauds.

At the conclusion of Mr. Avory's statement, it being too late to take evidence, the prisoners were remanded in custody.

APPENDIX H.

Mint Prosecutions.

EXTRACT from a Report by the Director (when Assistant Solicitor) to the Treasury, on the Criminal Business of his Department.—31st May 1872.

The uttering of counterfeit coin is made a regular business or profession, quite as much as the more difficult, but more lucrative trade of coining. In the cases of coiners, however, the number being fewer, and perhaps the fact of heavier sentences being usually passed, it is somewhat less usual to get further convictions against the same party.

The following cases are examples of the different occasions on which nine persons came under the notice of this Department on charges of uttering counterfeit coin, as taken from the records kept in the Department, as explained in the Report. In the cases in which convictions were not obtained, it is probable that the reason was a failure of evidence rather than the innocence of the party charged.

The circumstances of the first case given are somewhat peculiar.

In January of the present year (1872) an application was made to the Home Office by a woman calling herself Jane B., to permit her husband, a convict under sentence of penal servitude, to sign an application to the Bank of England for the transfer of 50 £ Consols, standing in the names of John B., gentleman, and Jane B., his wife, described as of B — Lodge, Buxton, into the name of Jane B., as a married woman entitled to the fund for her separate use under the Married Women's Property Act. In the application the fund was stated to be "the proceeds of the sale of two cottages "built for the wife by her father in 1848."

This application was in the ordinary course forwarded to the Treasury, and by the Treasury to the Treasury Solicitor for his advice, which would have been that, subject to the regulations of the convict establishment, the permission might be given.

APPENDIX J.

Perjury.

LETTER from the Right Hon. the President of the Probate Division to the Director.

79 Harley-street, W.,
25 April 1892.

My dear Sir Augustus,

I HAVE to thank you very much for the Report for 1891.

My interest, though the whole of the Report is most interesting, I think is greatest on the question of prosecutions for perjury.

I am glad that you make a firm stand against the outcry that, because a man fails in an action, or the jury find against the story of a witness, there should be a prosecution. It would bring the law into contempt in six months if anything of the kind took place, because prosecution after prosecution would certainly fail. I cannot help thinking that those persons who are anxious for prosecutions must forget the different conditions under which facts are decided in civil actions and under which they reappear as the subject matter of criminal prosecutions.

Hardly a week passes, in my limited experience, in which I do not give or take part in a decision involving disbelief in the statement of witnesses, but at the same time affording no occasion for a prosecution for perjury that would be likely to succeed.

Sir Augustus Stephenson, K.C.B.

I am, &c.
(signed) F. H. Jeune.

LETTER from the late President of the Probate Division to the Director.

Quisisana, Wiesbaden,
15 April 1892.

Dear Sir Augustus Stephenson,

PRAY forgive my not having acknowledged the receipt of your letter, and the accompanying Report for the year 1891. I was on the eve of departure for this place when the paper reached me, and I have since not been very well.

I have little or no experience in many of the matters to which your general observations refer; but I entirely concur with your views as to the objections to multiplying indictments for perjury by the Director of Public Prosecutions, especially in the case of witnesses in divorce suits.

As to your intervention in divorce suits, the discretion to be exercised is for you, rather than for me. As this matter, however, is dealt with in your Return, I may be permitted to say that I have every reason to be satisfied with the way in which such proceedings have been initiated and conducted during the nine years I have been one of the judges of the Probate, Divorce, and Admiralty Division.

I am, &c.
(signed) Charles P. Butt.

The Director, in asking permission of Sir Francis Jeune to quote his letter in the Director's forthcoming Return to Parliament, forwarded the original of the above letter to the President, who was good enough to write, on returning it to the Director :—

“The letter only expresses what I have more than once heard Sir C. Butt say; and I do not think there would be any indiscretion in your quoting from it.”

LETTER from the Right Hon. Sir Richard Couch, late Chief Justice of the High Court of Judicature, Calcutta, and Member of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, to the Director.

25, Linden-gardens, Baywater-road, W.,
18 April 1892.

My dear Sir Augustus,

I HAVE been interested in reading your Return, especially pages 24–30. I entirely agree with you. The power given by the Act of 1851 should be confined to directing a charge to be preferred before a magistrate. That is the power given by the law in India.

By the Indian Code of Civil Procedure, it is provided :—

“Sec. 643. When in any case pending before any Court, there appears to the Court sufficient ground for sending for investigation to the magistrate a charge of giving false

"evidence, or fabricating false evidence, for the purpose of being used in a judicial proceeding,
 "the Court may cause the person accused to be detained till the rising of the Court, and may
 "then send them in custody to the magistrate, or take sufficient bail for his appearance before
 "the magistrate.

"The Court shall send to the magistrate the evidence and documents relative to the "charge, and may bind over any person to appear and give evidence before such "magistrate. The magistrate shall receive such charge and proceed with it according to "law."

[Note.—The first part is not a literal copy of the section, as it is drawn so as to include other offences.]

It is very difficult to form an opinion upon the suggestion at page 30; I am inclined to think it should be treated as purely experimental. I should not like to give the Court, before which the false swearing took place, the power to punish it. In many cases a hasty and erroneous view might be taken of the evidence.

For instance, in the case Re E. M., page 9, the magistrate would most likely have punished the witness. I would give power to order the offender to be taken before a magistrate, and power to the magistrate to deal summarily with him, or to commit him for trial.

Sir Augustus K. Stephenson, K.C.B.,
 Treasury, Whitehall, S.W.

I am, &c.

LETTER from His Honour Judge Price, Q.C., Judge of County Court Circuit, No. 32, to the Director.

Holly Lodge, Unthinks-road, Norwich,
 11 April 1892.

Dear Stephenson,
 I HAVE read with great interest your Report, and more particularly that part of it which refers to the crime of perjury. My experience as to the result of prosecutions for perjury arising in my courts has led me to give up any idea of recommending them to be instituted.

I cordially concur in your suggestion, that if the power given to judges by Section 19, 14 and 15 Vict., c. 100, were amplified so as to enable them to order a party who has sworn falsely to be taken before a magistrate when there is sufficient corroborative evidence, it would have a very salutary effect.

* * * * *

Every day's further experience convinces me more and more of the necessity of some such amendment being made in the law as to the mode in which prosecutions for perjury in the County Courts can be instituted, as was pointed out by Judge Edge.

LETTER from His Honour Judge Owen, Judge of County Court Circuit, No. 24, to the Director.

Ty-Gwyn, Abergavenny,
 24 February 1893.

My dear Sir Augustus,
 I AM much obliged to you for sending to me a copy of your last Return to Parliament, and I have read it with much interest.

The amount of perjury which takes place in County Courts is sickening, and it is, I fear, increasing. In justice, however, to my countrymen, I should say that I have not found more perjury in the Welsh part of my Circuit than I have found in the English part of it. My Circuit includes the whole of Monmouthshire and parts of the Counties of Glamorgan, Brecon, Hereford, and Gloucester.

Juries are often loath to convict, and the technical nature of the offence is, I think, the cause of the acquittal of many prisoners who are undoubtedly guilty of false swearing.

There are so many practical difficulties against directing a prosecution for perjury under Section 19 of the Criminal Justice Act 1851 that I have never done so.

APPENDIX K.

LOTTERIES AND MISSING WORD COMPETITIONS.

REPORT of First Hearing in the "Pick-Me-Up" Competitions before Sir John Bridge, at Bow Street Police Court.

From "The Times," Wednesday, 14th December 1892.

The Missing Word Competition Case.

At Bow-street, yesterday, before Sir John Bridge, Mr. Henry Reichardt, proprietor and publisher and editor of a weekly paper entitled "Pick-Me-Up," and Messrs. Wertheimer, Lea & Co., London-wall, the printers, appeared in response to summonses issued at the instance of the Treasury. There were six charges, namely: (1) that the Defendants published in their paper a scheme for the sale of chances, &c., in a lottery known as "The Missing Word Competition;" (2) that they sold certain chances in this lottery; (3) that they published a scheme for the sale of chances in a lottery in "Pick-Me-Up" known as "The Weekly Art Competition;" (4) that they sold chances in "The Weekly Art Competition;" (5) that they kept open, at 11, Southampton-buildings, a lottery, namely, a drawing by certain lots and coupons in a lottery; and (6) that they played and drew by means of coupons the lottery called "The Weekly Art Competition." The proceedings were taken under Statute 42 Geo. 3, c. 119, s. 2, and Statute 4 Geo. 4, c. 60, s. 41.

Mr. Charles Mathews and Mr. Bodkin appeared on behalf of Sir A. K. Stephenson, the Public Prosecutor, who was in Court. Mr. Poland, Q.C., and Mr. Haldinstein were for the Defendants.

Mr. Mathews, in opening the case, said that for some time past the proprietor of "Pick-Me-Up" had been conducting what was known as a "missing word competition." In the issue for 26th November of the present year the following paragraph appeared:—

"In one of the buildings which is devoted to the reception of old and otherwise helpless paupers the following words are painted on the walls: 'Self-government, quietude, and peace are blessings.' The better kind of paupers live there. They have a motive for exertion and becoming pride in the desire to make their little chamber neat and —"

The public were invited to supply the missing word. According to the published conditions they could have as many guesses as they chose, but each guess had to be accompanied by a coupon cut out from "Pick-Me-Up" and a postal order for 1s. Pieces of paper bearing upon them words more or less suitable were placed by the proprietor in sealed envelopes, and later on one of them was drawn out. Then the shillings sent in were equally divided between those who had hit upon the word thus selected. That, he thought, gave a fairly good idea of the missing word competition.

The length to which this kind of thing had gone was extraordinary. The conductors of other papers with a much larger circulation did the same thing, and, consequently, the Defendants had not done so much harm as some others, but he should ask the Magistrate to say that they had infringed the law.

Sir John Bridge.] Judging from the amount of the prizes mentioned in the number of "Pick-Me-Up" before me, there were a good many competitors.

Mr. Mathews.] Yes, in this case there were 2,800.

Counsel then proceeded to refer to the weekly art competition. In this case the public were invited to select the best eight illustrations appearing in the paper, and to put them in what they considered their order of merit. The person who placed the eight pictures in the order most nearly resembling that assigned to them by the popular vote received a prize of 25*l*. The next nearest guesser received 10*l*., and so on. This was a clear infringement under which those proceedings were taken. It would be noticed that each guess had, in addition to a postal order for 1*s*., to be accompanied by a coupon from "Pick-Me-Up." By this means the Defendants reaped a considerable benefit, the sale of their paper going up at a rapid rate. It was not suggested for a moment that there was anything in the shape of unfair distribution, but there could be no doubt that the scheme placed large sums in the pockets of the promoters by means of an increased sale.

Sir John Bridge.] The mere fact of their reaping a financial benefit from the transaction does not make it illegal. Every means by which a man can increase the sale of an article is right so long as it is legal.

Mr. Mathews said he merely wished to show that these competitions were serviceable to the proprietors. The competitions were decided almost entirely by chance. In the sentence he had quoted above the missing word was "presentable," and those who sent it gained money. "Clean," or "neat," or a score of other words would have answered quite as well. It was always uncertain what word would be drawn, and it would be absurd to argue that it was a matter depending upon skill or judgment.

Having referred to what he described as a similar case to this, decided by Sir John Bridge in 1890, Mr. Mathews proceeded to quote the Statute 4 Geo. 4, c. 60, s. 41, rendering it illegal for anyone to take part in a lottery unauthorised by Act of Parliament, and contended that the missing word competition clearly came within that section. He next read the Act of George III. which stipulated that no person should carry on a lottery by means of cards, balls, figures, dice, or by any other device or contrivance whatever. In this case the device or contrivance consisted of the coupons returned week by week.

After quoting a number of cases in support of his contention, Mr. Mathews, continuing, said that the Defendants had met the Treasury in a very fair spirit, and had undertaken to discontinue the competitions pending a decision by the Court; but, owing to their practice of printing three weeks in advance, they had not been able to carry out their resolve as promptly as they would wish.

Evidence of purchase was then given.

Mr. Poland, for the defence, assured the learned Magistrate that his clients had every desire to comply with the requirements of the law; as a matter of fact, they had inserted a paragraph just as the paper was going to press to the effect that these competitions would be discontinued. The Defendants were not the inventors of the missing word competitions. They were invented by the proprietors of another paper, and the Defendants had to follow the example thus set them in order to keep up their circulation. A well-received definition of lottery was "the distribution of prizes "by lottery or chance." In most of the cases quoted by Mr. Mathews the element of chance existed. The case now being dealt with, however, was of a different description. This case raised for the first time the question whether a competition in which a certain amount of skill and judgment was required in order to entitle a person to a prize could be considered a lottery. He ventured to say that a great deal of skill and judgment was required in the competitions carried on by the Defendants. When people set their wits to work to find a suitable word with which to fill up the blank in the paragraphs forming the subject of the competition, they generally went to a deal of trouble. They referred to books, and selected a word only after they had devoted to the matter considerable thought and consideration. Where so much skill and judgment were required it could not be a lottery.

Sir John Bridge.] The prizes are not given to those who send in the most appropriate word. Only those who chose the word which happened to be selected receive anything.

Mr. Poland went on to argue that the case of "Caminada v. Hulton" was the only one on all fours with this one. In that matter coupons were published in the "Sporting Chronicle," which had to be filled up with the names of horses likely to win races. The man who sent in the greatest number of winners received the principal prizes, and other prizes were given in proportion. It was decided that there was nothing illegal in that, as the competitors had to exercise a certain amount of judgment as to the capabilities of the horses, and were guided by the form which the animals had displayed in previous races. None of the other cases quoted were similar to this one.

Sir John Bridge.] What happens if no one guesses the right word?

Mr. Poland.] I suppose they would then have another try. Counsel then proceeded to describe the art competition, contending that was a contest in which a great deal of skill and artistic knowledge was required. Since these competitions were started the public had been educated in artistic matters, and their judgment was almost equal to that of the members of the Royal Academy.

Mr. Mathews, speaking with regard to the art competition, argued that it was purely a matter of chance as to how the illustrations were placed by the unskilled people who took part in it. The worst picture from an artistic point of view might be the one to hit the popular fancy, and that would receive the largest number of votes.

Sir John Bridge then gave his decision [which is printed in the text of the Report, ante, p. 30].

Mr. Poland.] My client may want to review your decision. Will you defer judgment for a week, so that we may consider whether we will ask for a case?

Sir John Bridge.] Certainly.

Mr. Mathews.] The Public Prosecutor will not ask for costs in this case, but it must not be considered a precedent.

Sir John Bridge.] You would not have got costs if you had asked.

REPORT of Final Hearing and Decision of Sir John Bridge in the "Pick-Me-Up" Competition.

From "The Times," Wednesday, 21st December 1892.

At Bow-street, yesterday, Sir John Bridge sat specially in the Extradition Court to finally dispose of the case against the proprietor, editor, and printers of "Pick-Me-Up," who were summoned last week for infringing the Lottery Act by means of missing word competitions. On that occasion he fined the Defendants 1s. each with respect to each of six summonses taken out against them. On the application of Mr. Poland, Q.C., however, the case was adjourned to give Defendants an opportunity of deciding whether they would appeal. Yesterday the Treasury was represented by Mr. Bodkin, and Mr. Philip Hyams appeared for the Defendants.

Mr. Bodkin said: I am here this morning to ask formally for your judgment in the case of "Pick-Me-Up." The other side are represented by their solicitor; but it is a mere matter of form.

Mr. Hyams.] On behalf of the Defendants, I wish to assent to the decision arrived at by the Court.

Sir John Bridge.] That is to say, the Defendants are convicted, according to my decision last week, and fined 1s. in each case.

Mr. Bodkin.] I understand my friend does not ask you to state a case.

Mr. Hyams.] No, we ask for no case.

Sir John Bridge.] I think you have been well advised. What you say really means that the person who advised you stated that if you had gone on with the case you would not have succeeded.

Mr. Hyams explained that the competitions were now closed, although particulars of them appeared in copies of "Pick-Me-Up" which had been printed before Sir John Bridge gave his decision.

LETTER from the Director to the Solicitor for "Society."

Missing Word Competitions.—"Society."

Sir,

Treasury, 16 December 1892.

IN answer to yours of yesterday's date received this morning, I can only say that, so far as past competitions are concerned, in which moneys have been received and paid away, and the transaction completely closed, I do not propose to institute any proceedings in consequence of Sir John Bridge's decision on Tuesday last in the case of "Pick-Me-Up."

I have no authority to give permission to anyone to do any act forbidden by law, and if your client, or any other person, receives or deals with monies in connection with a lottery which has been adjudged to be illegal, he will do so at his own risk.

Joseph Crawshaw, Esq., Solicitor,

EXTRACT from Judgment of Mr. Justice Stirling, in "The Pearson's Weekly Competitions."

From "The Times," Friday, 10th February 1893.

High Court of Justice, Chancery Division.

Before Mr. Justice Stirling.

Barclay v. Pearson.

Oppler v. Pearson.

Missing Word Competitions.

This was the special case which was stated, in pursuance of the direction of the Court in this action, for the determination of the question whether one of a series of "missing word competitions" in a paper known as "Pearson's Weekly" was illegal, as being in contravention of the Lottery Acts, or otherwise, upon the following questions:—

(1) Whether the competition was illegal under any of the statutes against lotteries, wagers, or otherwise.

* * * * *

It appears from the case that for upwards of a year prior to the issue of "Pearson's Weekly" for the week ending 10th December 1892 competitions known as "missing word" competitions had from time to time been announced in that journal. These were all of the same nature and regulated by the same conditions as that competition to which the writ in the action refers, viz., "Missing Word Competition, No. 53." The terms of that competition are thus stated in the case:—

"In the issue of 'Pearson's Weekly' for the week ending the 10th December 1892 there appeared the following announcement: The correct word in this competition will be found in the number of 'Society News' which is on sale at all newsagents first thing on the morning of Thursday, December 15th. Full particulars will appear, as usual, in 'Pearson's Weekly' of the following Saturday.

"'Missing Word Competition, No. 53.'

"On the third column of page 331 is a paragraph about an experiment with camphor. The last word in it is omitted. Readers who wish to enter this competition must cut out the coupon below, fill in this word, together with their names and addresses, and send it with a postal order for one shilling, to reach us at latest by first post on Monday, December 12th, the envelope marked 'Word.'

"The correct word is in the hands of Mr. H. S. Linley, chartered accountant, 124, Chancery-lane, London, W.C., enclosed in an envelope sealed with our seal. His statement with regard to it will appear, with the result of the competition, in the issue for the week after next. The whole of the money received in entrance fees will be divided amongst those competitors who fill in the word correctly. It is hoped that competitions will be posted to Temple Chambers, London, E.C., as early in the week as possible. Members of the same family may compete if they like, and anyone may send as many attempts as he or she chooses, provided that each is accompanied by a separate coupon and a sufficient remittance. All postal orders must be made payable to 'Pearson's Weekly.' Coupons also appear in 'Society News' and the 'Companion,' which entitle purchasers to enter for 'Pearson's Weekly' Missing Word Competition on payment of the usual shilling."

On the third column of page 331 of the last-mentioned issue of "Pearson's Weekly" there was the following paragraph about an experiment with camphor:—

"Here is a little experiment which is well worth showing to your friends. Procure a bit of ordinary camphor, and from it break off tiny pieces. Drop these upon the surface of some pure water, contained in any kind of vessel, and they will immediately begin to rotate and move about, sometimes continuing to do this for several hours. The water must be quite clean, for if a drop of oil or any grease is in it the experiment will not work. But provided that nothing of this sort gets in, the little pieces of camphor will twirl about in a manner that is extremely——."

Coupons to the number of 472,574, with sums of money amounting in all to 23,628 l. 14s. were sent to the Defendant Pearson. The "correct word" proved to be "unaccountable," and was given by by 1,358 competitors, among whom were the Plaintiffs, Barclay and Oppler, one of whom was stated to have sent no fewer than 88 coupons. This sum of 23,628 l. 14s. was afterwards paid into Court by the Defendants, Cyril A. Pearson and C. A. Pearson (Limited), who claim no beneficial interest in the fund. The Defendant Hearn sent in one coupon not containing the word "unaccountable." He is stated to have repudiated the competition, and to demand the return of the shilling contributed by him to the fund. Under Order XXXIV., Rule 1, I am at liberty "to draw from the facts" and documents stated in the case any inference, whether of fact or law, which might have "been drawn therefrom, if proved, at the trial:" and I draw the following inferences: (1) It is of the essence of the competition that there should be several words which might, more or less appropriately, fill the gap in the paragraph. In the instance now in question a great number of words might, with perfect grammatical and logical propriety, be selected for the purpose. (2) Is it not of the essence of the competition that the word to which success attaches, or, as it is called, the "correct word," should be the most appropriate to fill the gap? In the present case many words appear to me more appropriate than "unaccountable." (3) No clue is given to the mode in which, among the many words more or less appropriate, that to which success attaches is actually chosen. I infer that the selection is perfectly arbitrary, or, in other words, that it is made by chance: and is none the less so because the range of selection, though wide, is not unlimited. It appears to me (and it was not disputed in argument) that, if this competition constitutes a lottery within the meaning of 42 Geo. 3, c. 119, it was illegal; and it is, therefore to be considered, in the first place, whether it was a lottery. In delivering the judgment of a Divisional Court in "Taylor v. Smetten" (11 Q. B. D. 207), Hawkins, J., says: "In Webster's Dictionary a lottery is defined to be a 'distribution of prizes by lot or chance, and a similar definition is given in Johnson; such definitions are, in our opinion, correct, and in such sense we think the word is used in the statute.' I am bound by that expression of opinion, but I think it right to say that I entirely agree with it. In the present case the competition is intended to end in a distribution of prizes, viz., shares in the fund contributed by all the competitors. Further, I think that the distribution takes place 'by chance.' In coming to that conclusion I have the guidance of a decision (which, doubtless, is not binding on me, but which appears to be perfectly correct) of the present learned and experienced Magistrate at Bow-street, Sir John Bridge. He had to consider the case of a competition conducted generally on a similar mode to that now in question, but with the following variations of detail: the word to which success attached was not fixed until after all the coupons had been sent in, and was then chosen by selecting from a bag one of 20 or 30 pieces of paper on which had been written words which were more or less appropriate solutions. The Magistrate held that it was a scheme for distributing prizes by chance, and, consequently, a lottery. In giving judgment he is stated to have said (according to the report with which I have been furnished), 'If the competition is decided by skill and judgment and not by chance, then it is not a lottery. If competitors were asked to supply the word' (by which I understand him to mean the most appropriate word), 'and not a word, it makes a difference. The Defendants do not pretend to say that they call for the selection of the most fitting word with which to complete the sentence. The selection of the word must be entirely a matter of chance. On that ground the case comes within the meaning of the Lottery Acts.' I agree with these observations, and think them applicable to the present case. Neither the circumstances that the word is determined before the competition begins, nor the circumstance that the mode of selection is unknown, appears to me to give rise to any real difference. It was urged that the chance or lot contemplated by the Statute 42 Geo. 3, c. 119, must be ejusdem generis with those enumerated, viz., 'dice, lots, cards, balls,' or 'numbers or figures.' I think the use of a physical lot is form, not substance; the arbitrary, unfettered choice of the editor of 'Pearson's Weekly' does not substantially differ from selection by means of the bag made use of in the competition which gave rise to the decision at Bow-street, and the latter was admitted to fall within the term of the Act. In my opinion, therefore, the answer to the first question must be that the competition was illegal under the statutes against lotteries.

From "The Standard," Friday, 10th February 1893.

EQUITY has followed the law, and the "Missing Word Competition," already declared illegal by Sir John Bridge, has now received the emphatic condemnation of Mr. Justice Stirling in the case of "Barclay v. Pearson," in which his Lordship gave a considered judgment yesterday morning. The recent successful prosecution of the proprietor of another weekly print went a good way towards checking the novel and mischievous species of gambling against which it was directed. But it did not go far enough. In that case no question arose as to the legal position of those who gained, or failed to gain, prizes in the competition. Moreover, the missing word was not chosen until after the competition had taken place, and the fateful choice was made at random from a number of words, presumably written or printed on slips of paper, and thrown into a hat; about as arbitrary a mode of selection as the wit of man could well devise. It was obvious that, so long as the mutual rights of the parties to the missing word competition remained undetermined, and the only case in which the legality of the competition itself had come in question was a manifest lottery, there could be no finality in the decision that Sir John Bridge had pronounced, and it is, therefore, matter for congratulation that the moot points which we have indicated were speedily and distinctly brought up for judgment in the case of "Barclay v. Pearson." The missing word competition in this case bore a sufficient resemblance to that for which the proprietor of the other publication was prosecuted to render a description of it superfluous; but it contained all the elements necessary to enable Mr. Justice Stirling to pass what we trust will prove to be a sentence of death on this familiar game of chance in almost every form which it has assumed. In "Barclay v. Pearson" the action was brought by successful contributors to one of the missing word competitions, to recover from the Defendant the prizes which they had gained. An unsuccessful competitor, made (as Mr. Justice Stirling held) a co-Defendant chiefly for the purpose of resisting the Plaintiff's claim, submitted that, having repudiated the illegal contract in time, he was entitled to recover his deposit; and in the competition on whose true character the fate of the action depended the missing word had been selected by Mr. Pearson, written down on paper, and put into a sealed envelope, before the competition took place. Mr. Justice Stirling held that these differences in point of detail between the one case and the other were perfectly immaterial. In Mr. Pearson's case the selection of the missing word was purely arbitrary; it was not alleged that the word actually chosen was either the only or even the most appropriate one to fill the blank in the paragraph submitted to competitors; the camphor experiment, which formed the subject of the competition in question, might well have been described, as his Lordship observed, by other terms quite as logical and as grammatical as "unaccountable," and the competition was, therefore, "a distribution of prizes by chance," which is now the recognised judicial definition of "lottery." It only remained, therefore, to dispose of the rights of the parties to this illegal contract. The successful competitors, said his Lordship, had no right of action for the recovery of their prizes; they were in pari delicto with the Defendant, and could not profit by their own wrong-doing. The unsuccessful competitors might recover their deposits by an action of debt if they had retired from the lottery in time, and given notice of their claims before Mr. Pearson, the stakeholder, had parted with the funds. But on behalf of neither class would a court of equity interfere to administer the tainted proceeds of an illegal transaction. The funds which had been paid into Court must, therefore, either remain there, to benefit the legal profession in the meantime, and, ultimately, to bear their part in the extinction of the National Debt, or be returned to Mr. Pearson, who might meet the legal claims of unsuccessful contributors, and then dispose of the residue as he thought right. Which of these courses will be adopted is comparatively immaterial. The point of public importance is the comprehensive character of the definition of "lottery" which has now been substantially established.

APPENDIX L.

Administration of the Criminal Law of Bankruptcy.

MEMORANDUM by the Honourable H. Cuffe, Assistant Solicitor.

THE observations relating to the above subject which appear in the Ninth Report of the Board of Trade under Section 131 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, Parliamentary Paper [c. 6825], 1892, deserve attention.

The Inspector General in Bankruptcy in that Report points out that the statutory power of the Court to order prosecutions is limited to certain offences specifically enumerated in Sections 11 to 14 of the Debtors Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 62), and Section 31 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 52), and suggests the expediency of giving the Court similar powers in respect of other offences which may be disclosed in the course of bankruptcy examinations, such as perjury, forgery, misdemeanours as agents, &c.

The powers given to the Court to order prosecutions are contained in Section 16 of the Debtors Act, 1869, which runs as follows:—

"Where a trustee in any bankruptcy reports to any Court exercising jurisdiction in bankruptcy that, in his opinion, a bankrupt has been guilty of any offence under this Act or where the Court is satisfied, upon the representation of any creditor or member of the committee of inspection, that there is ground to believe that the bankrupt has been guilty of any offence under this Act, the Court shall, if it appears to the Court that there is a reasonable probability that the bankrupt may be convicted, order the trustee to prosecute the bankrupt for such offence" and I think, to appreciate the probable intention of the Legislature, it is necessary to consider the character of the offences to which that section refers.

The acts or omissions enumerated in Section 11 are made misdemeanours in the case of a person adjudged bankrupt, or whose affairs are in process of liquidation under the Bankruptcy Act, and those acts or omissions would not, save under special circumstances, be criminal offences unless committed by a person in that situation. The same observation applies to Section 12, but the provisions of Section 13 relate to frauds on creditors generally.

Section 14 only relates to proceedings in bankruptcy, and Section 31 of the Bankruptcy Act only to undischarged bankrupts.

Generally speaking, it may therefore be said that the powers given to the Court are limited to offences created by special legislation, and for a specific purpose, i.e., to protect creditors against a particular class of frauds and to provide for the administration of bankrupts' estates, with due regard to the interests of public policy and morality. It is not probable that persons administering an estate, or creditors, who would be primarily interested in collecting as large assets as possible, would, when they had done this, care about embarking in criminal proceedings, while on the other hand, there might, in the course of the administration of an estate, be a temptation to make use of the criminal law for the purpose of putting pressure on the bankrupt to disclose or surrender property.

To guard against the possible supineness of a trustee, or the misuse of the criminal law, it appears to me that the Legislature has made sufficient provision, as it is not probable, in view of the section quoted and the 17th section, that a trustee would run the risk of losing his costs by prosecuting without an order, and when a prosecution was requisite he would have no option but to take action on the order made by the Court.

With great respect for the views of the Inspector General, I do not think there is any necessity for the prosecution of what I may term ordinary criminal offences, such as perjury or forgery, by means of a special procedure because they are brought to light in the course of bankruptcy proceedings.

Such offences, which, if capable of being established, are of a very serious character quite apart from any question of bankruptcy, could always be dealt with as other perjuries, forgeries, &c. are, by communication with the police, the local authorities, or the Director of Public Prosecutions, and no order from a Judge or Court is required for the institution of such proceedings.

I may observe that the burden which is imposed on the Court by Section 16 of the Debtors Act, of satisfying itself that there is a reasonable probability that the bankrupt may be convicted, should, as it seems to me, be only imposed upon it in relation to a limited number of bankruptcy offences, and I see no necessity for an order in the case of an offence which, committed under any other circumstances, requires no such investigation as the section contemplates in bankruptcy offences.

So far as this Department is concerned, I should deprecate legislation in the direction indicated by the Inspector General.

The office of Director of Public Prosecutions is the creation of a statute (42 & 43 Vict. c. 22), and such statute did not, as is widely believed, create a "Public Prosecutor" in the sense in which that term is used in foreign countries, but an officer whose functions are to prosecute a limited number of important prosecutions, more or less closely defined by Section 2 and the Regulations made under the Act, the duty being imposed on him of deciding what cases come within that section.

His staff and the Vote for Law Charges are alike estimated on the assumption that he, in his discretion, will limit his action to such cases.

Section 166 of the Bankruptcy Act of 1883 has, however, in one class of cases, taken away his discretion by imposing upon him the duty of prosecuting in all cases arising out of bankruptcy proceedings in which an order is made to prosecute, but if this system is to be extended to cases outside those enumerated in the Debtors Act, the discretion, by the exercise of which alone he can keep within the limitations of staff and the amount of money assigned to him, will be further taken away from him, it may be to a considerable extent, and not he, but the County Court Judge, or the Judge or Registrar in Bankruptcy, will in such cases exercise that discretion, and assume the responsibility as to the institution of criminal proceedings.

If this power is to be vested in these particular judicial officers, there can, logically, be no reason why a similar power should not be given to all Judges and magistrates, and the Director of Public Prosecutions become, in effect, a ministerial officer of every court of justice in the country.

The alteration proposed by the Inspector General ought not, I think, to be effected without serious consideration of the possible cost, and also of the grave objections to taking away from the officer who will have the conduct of the prosecution the responsibility for the institution of the proceedings.

It is not infrequently the case that Judges direct the attention of the Director of Public Prosecutions to cases in which they conceive that perjury has been committed, or other offences brought to light in cases tried before them, in order that he should inquire into the matter. Such cases would, as a matter of course, receive prompt and careful attention, and I do not think Judges would, as a rule, desire to possess, or would frequently exercise, if they possessed it, such a power as that of ordering the Director to prosecute on facts which have so come before them.

In certain bankruptcy offences the power already exists, and there have been cases in which orders have been made where it has seemed to the Director of Public Prosecutions, on further inquiry into the circumstances, that they were not such as to render the institution of criminal proceedings expedient, although technically there might be evidence of an offence. The Inspector General comments on the number of acquittals and light sentences, but I think this may be because it is sometimes felt by Judges that, where technical offences against the Debtors Act have been committed, the cases are not such as would have been prosecuted by the Director of Public Prosecutions, but for orders made under the Act, and I do not myself think the experiment of making the Director of Public Prosecutions the ministerial officer to this extent of a County Court has always led to happy results.

It is believed, and the Board of Trade Report confirms this belief, that the Registrar of a County Court is often better acquainted with the facts than the Judge, and, so far as the Director of Public Prosecutions can judge from the papers that reach him, it would appear the orders are not unusually made on the ex-parte report of the official receiver or trustee, speaking to circumstances which have been ascertained by him, but unaccompanied by evidence sufficient to establish the fact that there is a prima facie case, so that it may be very difficult for the Judge to form a reliable opinion whether, to use the words of the section under which he exercises his power, there is a reasonable probability that the bankrupt may be convicted.

When investigated the facts sometimes bear a different complexion to that which they have presumably presented to the Judge on the materials before him, and the Director of Public Prosecutions is in such cases launched on a prosecution of which he may not approve, and which he would not, but for Section 166 of the Bankruptcy Act, have undertaken. If process is refused by the magistrate (as has happened), or if there should be no evidence of a criminal offence, the matter is necessarily at an end, but where there is primâ facie evidence, however slight, of a technical offence, the Director is compelled to proceed, the accused is committed for trial, and may be kept in prison till trial, the result possibly being an acquittal or nominal sentence.

I myself think that, so far from extending the power of the Judge in this direction, the Director of Public Prosecutions ought to be left to exercise his discretion in all cases as to instituting proceedings.

He is the person who best can, and whose duty it is to, investigate the facts thoroughly for the purposes of a prosecution, and, apart altogether from personal qualifications, his means of testing the evidence, and thereby judging of the advisability of a prosecution, are generally more ample than those at the command of the Judge who deals with the bankruptcy.

I fully appreciate the zeal and ability of the officers of the Board of Trade engaged throughout the country in bankruptcy proceedings, but, apart from the fact that they have not always a large experience of criminal law and practice, the object of their inquiries is primarily into the bankrupt's manner of trading, his conduct, and the realisation of his assets, and where there is what is called a "bad bankruptcy" they and the creditors are, I think, not disposed to judge the debtor leniently, and are sometimes led to apply for orders for criminal prosecutions without full consideration of the aspect the case may assume when presented in a criminal court.

In my judgment it would have been better that the discretion which the Legislature has vested in, and the responsibility it has imposed on, the Director of Public Prosecutions should not have been taken away in respect of any class of prosecutions; and I think that, even if this is desirable in respect of bankruptcy offences, there is no reason for extending the practice to ordinary offences, merely because they come to light in the course of, or are connected with, bankruptcy proceedings.

It may incidentally be observed that the law is already in some respects severer towards bankrupts than towards any other class of offenders.

If a man is arrested on any ordinary charge he is given a caution to the effect that he need not say anything, and that, if he does, it will be used in evidence against him. If in any proceedings, civil or criminal, a witness is asked a question the answer to which may criminate him, he may refuse to answer that question. On the other hand, if a bankrupt, he is compulsorily examined on oath; he has, as I understand the law, no exemption from answering any question put to him which properly relates to the subject of his examination,* and has sometimes the alternative of admitting an offence or committing perjury.

* Reg. v. Scott, Dearsley, & Bell, p. 47.
This principle would now seem to be extended to persons examined in the winding up of companies under Sec. 8 of 53 & 54 Vict. c. 63.

If the former, and it be an offence under the Debtors Act, an order may be made for his prosecution, if the latter, the case may be reported to the Director of Public Prosecutions, or prosecuted in the ordinary way. In either case he is in a worse position than a person whose conduct or position does not bring him within the provisions of the section to which I have referred, and the law deals with him in a manner which is inconsistent with the principle on which it acts in other cases.

Accepting, however, the present system as being requisite in consequence of the amount of commercial fraud in the country, I think it would be better in practice that the Bankruptcy Department of the Board of Trade should, by the Solicitor to the Board of Trade, conduct these prosecutions. The officers of the Board know and control their official receivers, and, if the conduct of the proceedings were in their hands, they would be able and would find it necessary to take precautions against orders being applied for without careful consideration of the nature of the alleged offence, and the probability of conviction. At present the responsibility, after the making of the order, is transferred to another Department, and it has not, as I think, always been sufficiently realised that a case, when presented to a County Court Judge on the report of an official receiver or trustee, may appear in a very different light to that case when it is sifted by the responsible prosecutor for the purposes of criminal proceedings.

I desire to say, in conclusion, that we have every reason to be indebted to the officers of the Board of Trade for the assistance they have always rendered us in respect of bankruptcy prosecutions, and that I know the Board of Trade desire to do all they can to guard against applications being made without due consideration for orders to prosecute, I think, however, it would be an improvement to concentrate the responsibility in one Department, either by giving the Board of Trade the control of these prosecutions, or by leaving the discretion as to the institution of proceedings in the hands of the Director of Public Prosecutions. I do not suggest that there is any pressing necessity for the present procedure in respect of bankruptcy offences being altered (which would require legislation), but I do not think there is any good reason for its being extended to other offences. In such cases it would be sufficient, in my judgment, that the attention of the Director should be called to the evidence, in order that he should take such action as might appear to him to be necessary.

* Three additional Revising Barristers were appointed, and sat for 12, 3, and 2 days respectively.

† A substitute sat for 9 days in addition.

Each of the above Barristers received in 1887 the sum of 210*l.*, and in subsequent years the sum of 262*l.* 10*s.* as remuneration, and in respect of all expenses. In cases where a substitute was appointed this sum was divided between the Barrister and his substitute. In 1888 the three additional Barristers for the Middlesex Circuit received 100*l.* 16*s.* ; 25*l.* 4*s.* ; and 16*l.* 16*s.* respectively. No further charge in respect of the holding of Revision Courts is defrayed from public funds.

The Act 21 Vict. 10, s. 9, provides that of the total sum paid to Revising Barristers for remuneration and travelling expenses, one moiety shall be paid from money provided by Parliament, and the remainder from County funds.

National Debt Office,
29 February 1892.

C. Rivers Wilson,
Comptroller General.

SUPREME COURT OF JUDICATURE (FUNDS) ACCOUNT.

REPORT of the COMPTROLLER and AUDITOR GENERAL upon the ACCOUNT of the RECEIPTS and EXPENDITURE of the PAYMASTER GENERAL on behalf of the SUPREME COURT OF JUDICATURE, for the Period from 1st March 1891 to 29th February 1892; also, upon the ACCOUNT of the COMMISSIONERS FOR THE REDUCTION OF THE NATIONAL DEBT, on behalf of the SUPREME COURT (Deposit and Exchange Account) during the same Period; pursuant to the Acts 35 & 36 Vict. c. 44, s. 20, and 46 & 47 Vict. c. 29, s. 4.

Accounts correct.

1. THESE Accounts have been examined under my superintendence, and are correct.

Liability of the Consolidated Fund.

2. A reduction in the liability of the Consolidated Fund to the extent of 100,000 l. has taken place within the year. It will be remembered that the Chancellor of the Exchequer, when submitting his Budget proposals, explained to the House of Commons that he had been called upon to provide a sum of 100,000 l. out of the Consolidated Fund to meet certain claims for which that Fund was liable under the Act 32 & 33 Vict. c. 91. The amount in question was transferred to the Account of the Paymaster General in March 1891, and is duly accounted for in his Annual Statement now appended. The "net apparent liability," as stated in the Memorandum on page 4, has now consequently been reduced to 1,900,936 l. 3 s. 11 d.

Purchases and Sales.

3. All purchase and sale transactions of Government Stocks are now effected by means of a system of exchange. Under the practice in vogue prior to 1884, all such transactions would have been the subject of actual purchases and sales on the Stock Exchange.

Suitors' Accounts.

4. The number of suitors' accounts open in the books at the close of the year was 41,544.

Exchequer and Audit Department,
16 December 1892.

C. L. Ryan,
Comptroller General of the Receipt and Issue of Her Majesty's Exchequer, and Auditor General of Public Accounts.

SUPREME COURT OF JUDICATURE.

COURT OF JUDICATURE, in respect of the FUNDS of SUITORS of the COURT, in the Year ended
29th February 1892; also, ACCOUNT of the NATIONAL DEBT COMMISSIONERS for the same Period in respect of FUNDS held by them on behalf of the SUPREME COURT OF JUDICATURE; together with the REPORT of the COMPTROLLER and AUDITOR GENERAL thereon.

(Presented pursuant to Acts 35 & 36 Vict. c. 44, s. 20, and 46 & 47 Vict. c. 29, s. 4.)
